TRAIN SCHEDULE CHANGED

Two passenger trains were taken off for the winter in the change which went into effect on the Grand Trunk, Sunday. The early morning and the late evening trains ceased to operate.

The service from Norway station is as follows: Train for Portland arrive 8:40 a. m., depart 8:41 a. m.; from Portland to Gorham, N. H., and west, arrive 7:28, depart 7:29, daily except Sunday. No Sunday service on Norway Branch.

Trains leave South Paris going west, at 9:40 a. m., daily; arrive 7:22 p. m., leave 7:35, daily except Sunday.

Going east, arrive 8.34 a. m.; leave 8:47 daily, except Sunday; 5:26 p. m., daily.

ORDER DELAYED TEN YEARS

On August 29, the W. F. Tubbs Co. received a money order of $10 for a pair of snowshoes. The goods were sent by parcel post to the consignee in Prichard, Idaho. In due time a letter from the postmaster there informed the company that the goods were unclaimed for the person died nearly 11 years ago.

Inspecting the correspondence more carefully, the Tubbs office discovered the original order was made out in 1919. What held up the letter or money order for so many years is a mystery, being unravelled by the post office department.

FAMILY GATHERING

Ira Harriman is entertaining all his sons and daughters at the home farm on Fore street. The family arrived Wednesday for a celebration of his seventy-fifth birthday on Thursday night. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Harriman are here from Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Cadigan from Massachusetts, Ralph Harriman from Ventura, Cal., and Mrs. Crystal Harriman Davis from Montana. Arthur Harriman, manager of Rex Theatre, will join the party.

EIGHTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL FAIR

OXFORD COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY

Fine Weather Each Day—Army of School Children On Hand Tuesday—Midway a Busy Place—Fireworks Prove Drawing Attraction—Official Reports Say 25,000 Attended Middle Day of Fair

For the first time in several years, the Oxford County Fair went through in three days without a good rain storm and postponement.

This year the 88th annual exhibition was held September 9, 10, 11, with clear skies, but not altogether balmy air. Clear mornings were favorable for early plans and a gathering of crowds before the noon hour.

The attendance was light on the first day, from the box office standpoint, but an army of school children admitted free added numbers and some profit to concession owners. A large crowd gathered for the fireworks and remained for a session on the midway.

On Wednesday there was a paid attendance much larger than the average of middle days in past years. According to official reports, approximately 25,000 were on the grounds. The large grand stand was patronized nearly to capacity and hundreds swarmed along the fences for the races and vaudeville. The midway, cattle department, exhibition halls and automobiles absorbed several thousand. A regular mob viewed the fireworks, but the autumn chill sent many home long before activities ceased along the fun trail.

Thursday proved quiet, in spite of some 10,000 on the grounds. Good vaudeville, fast racing and lively pulling were attractions which kept all interested during the fina go down of the annual show.

Annual Meeting

W. O. Frothingham Resigns, After Thirty-Five Years as Secretary—New Officers Elected

William O. Frothingham, secretary-treasurer of the Oxford County Agricultural Society for thirty-five years, presented his written resignation. He gave the pressure of business and his election to the office of sheriff of the count as his reason for retiring. This was done at the annual meeting of the society, in the rooms, Thursday afternoon.

The resignation was accepted with regrets and Stanley M. Wheeler of South Paris was elected to that office. A rising vote of thanks was given Mr. Frothingham for the efficient and business-like way he had carried on his office during the long term.

As Mr. Wheeler was a trustee and could not hold that office, George F. Hill of Norway was elected to fill the unexpired term. Arthur G. Hayes of Oxford declined re-election as trustee and Fred L. Staples of Oxford was elected for that place. Trustees elected to succeed themselves were W. E. Penley of West Paris and Charles W. Bowker of South Paris.

A. W. Weston of Bolster's Mills was re-elected vice president for two years.

Air Plane

Parachute Jumper Landed in Tree

Buster Keating, a parachute jumper, with a flying circus from the Middlebury Airport in Vermont, accomplished two successful jumps from the clouds.

When up some 2,000 feet Wednesday afternoon he leaped into space above Norway village and drifted with the wind across the fair grounds. A thrilling landing was made in the presence of 20,000 people. The aviator manipulated the parachute and bumped the earth on a spot three rods square, roped off for that emergency within the trotting oval.

He repeated the jump Thursday afternoon, expecting to make a landing on the ball field in front of the grand stand. Everything went good until within 500 feet of earth. A long breeze swept his parachute outside the enclosure and the outfit settled in a tall poplar tree behind the stand on Fair street. Members of the Norway Fire Department, who were on emergency duty on the grounds, were quickly on the spot with the combination pumper. An extension ladder was used to retrieve the parachute. Keating escaped without a scratch.

Irving Ward and an assistant and two planes connected with the airport did stunts and carried passengers from the A. D. Cummings field on Fore street, during the fair.

Grand Display of Fireworks

Large Crowds Attracted Each Evening

An elaborate display of set pieces, wheels, flares and noisy bombs attracted large crowds onto the grounds Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. This was the third year of a fireworks program and by far the best, from the angle of the large number and fine quality of the pieces set off.

The program opened with a few bombs as the curtain raiser for a brilliant display of complex wheels and large set pieces. A few movable numbers like elephants, autos, and horses, created sport.

A spectacular climax was two war tanks bombarding a fort to the accompaniment of a battle in the sky. For five minutes actual war conditions reigned, without the danger from exploding mines and shells.

The manner in which the crowds turn out and grow enthusiastic indicates this part of the fair is a real feature appreciated by the masses. The evening attendance was equal, if not larger, than during the day.

Miss Violet Upton is home from Bethel where she was waitress during the summer at Bethel Inn.

Philip R. Geenleaf leaves Saturday morning for Chicago to resume his studies at the Northwestern University.

Mrs. Julia Russell, who has been seriously ill and confined to her bed the past week, is gaining and able to sit up a short time each day.

C. H. Berry and family moved here Thursday. They came from Athol, Mass., and have bought a place in Millettville, where they will reside.

The first real frost occurred Sept. 9, and tender vines suffered. The ground was white before sunrise, owing to the absence of fog, which has protected low land several mornings the past ten days.

Arsene Blaquiere, local manager of the Norway Water Co., started on two weeks vacation. After one week of bliss, he was called back on the job to repair a broken hydrant in the Cummings Co. mill yard.

PULLING WEDNESDAY

Three events for cattle and two for horses in pairs called a crowd of excited fans to the pulling surface near the small stand.

Six starters in the 2800 and under class for horses, was a hotly contested event. Harry Pratt's pair, weighing 2790, carried away first place, with H. P. Brown & Son of Norway second. A three-cornered contest in the 2600 and under class went to the team of H. P. Brown & Son by a large margin over L. L. Russell of South Paris and Woodrow Grover, the juvenile driver, from Welchville.

Among the cattle entries, oxen 6 ft., 6 in. and under made up a list of eight yoke for that event. A. W. Weston, Bolster's Mills, earned first money with Edward Boothby of Costigan but seven feet behind for second place.

Summaries are as follows:

Pulling on Thursday

Three classes and two sweepstakes for oxen or steers made up the events for cattle during Thursday. The real excitement developed during th spcial sweepstakes with eight yoke under 7 feet, 2 inches, entered by eight contestants.

For horses in pairs, the sweepstakes open to the state brought together five teams of unusual merit. Ray Thurston of Andover captured first money with Jason N. French of New Vineyard some distance behind for second. Only 3 feet separated the pairs of Fred Scammon and A. B. Grover for third place, won by the former.

McDonald Dies at Fair

Mr. McDonald of Gray Suffered Heart Attack

George T. McDonald, aged 70, of Gray, suffered an attack of heart trouble Wednesday forenoon, near the midway, and died before the arrival of a physician.

He atttended the fair that morning with his two sons, Roy C. and Harry L. McDonald, both of Gray. Apparently in his usual health, he was touring the midway and watching the pulling when he had a bad spell, about 10 o'clock. He was attended by a physician and seemed to recover.

After a short rest, he again went out sightseeing. The fatal attack occurred about 12:30 and he collapsed near the corner of the small grand stand, and was removed to one of the stalls.

Dr. I. W. Staples of Norway arrived within fifteen minutes and pronounced the man dead. Angina pectoris was given as the cause. The body was removed to Spiller's Funeral Home in Norway.

The deceased was born in Gray seventy years ago last May and a life long resident of that town. His wife passed away some years ago. Besides the two sons, he leaves one other, Joseph C. McDonald, who resides in New York.

Races

Trotting on Tuesday

A splendid racing card opened the three-day activities for light harness classes. The track was in excellent condition, which favored fast time. Five heats were turned in for the 2:19 trot and pace with 2:12 the best time. Five started, but the race developed into a three cornered event after Wilson's Express captured the first mile, then was edged out by Hollywood Bob in the next two.

Six started in the 2.27 trot and pace but five remained to finish the race that closed in three heats.

The three-year-olds settled the argument with two heats, in regular order. Following are the summaries:

Dr. R. W. Smith of Laconia, N. H., was the starter.

WEDNESDAY

Four races were completed Wednesday afternoon, with nine starters in the 2.23 mixed event. This went five heats after five horses were ruled out in the last two heats.

The 2.17 trot with four starters proved the fastest race for the day, with 2.09 1-4 recorded in the opening performance. Orion, driven by Ralph Sturgis of Norway, finished a close second in two heats and trailed the field in the closing heat.

RACES THURSDAY

The last day's racing card was a fitting climax to the strong light harness program given Tuesday and Wednesday.

Irving Pottle, the Portland driver, added two more victories to his long string, taking the 2:15 trot and pace in three straight, with two firsts in the claiming race.

King Forbes, piloted by Ralph Sturgis, made good showing in the claiming race after trailing in the first heat:

Partridge Elected To Congress

DONALD B. PARTRIDGE

Norway Boy Wins Out by Handsome Majority in the Contest for the Second District Congressional Seat in Monday's Election

In Monday's election, Donald B. Partridge of Norway won the contest in the Second District for representative to Congress, with a vote of 16,763 against Albert Beliveau of Rumford, who received 10,759. Norway is proud of the fact that one of her sons came out victorious for it has been some twenty years since an Oxford County man has represented the state in the House of Representatives.

Donald B. Partridge was born at Norway Lake, June 7, 1891, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. Scott Partridge. He attended the Norway Lake School and Norway High School, graduating in the class of 1910. In the fall of 1910 he entered Bates College and during his college course was class president, cass orator, prize speaker for two years, and a member of the debating team. He graduated from Bates in 1914 with honors, and for the three following years he was principal of Canton High School.

In 1918, Mr. Partridge was elected Clerk of Courts, which office he has ably held for the past twelve years, up to the present election, when his successor, Rupert F. Aldrich of Norway, was elected.

During these years he has acquired a knowledge of law and on October 14th, 1924, on motion of Albert J. Stearns of Norway, Justice Charles P. Barnes, who was the presiding Justice at the Supreme Court at South Paris, admitted him to the Oxford Couny Bar Associaion. Some five years ago he opened a law office in Norway.

Mr. Partridge is town clerk of Norway and has served as chairman of the school committee and is prominent in the affairs of the town.

He is unusually well fitted to fill the requirements of this office to which he was elected last Monday.

Oxford County League

Paris Hill 2; Rattlers 1

The Norway Rattlers and Paris Hill went into a close squeeze during an Oxford County League game on the Norway grounds, Saturday afternoon. This was a nip and tuck affair until the eighth, when the Hill boys sent a run across to break the tie and win.

"Chet" Pratt, former Pine Tree League hurler, held the slab for Paris and staged a battle with A. Labossiere. Each through flying with but five hits from their delivery. Pratt had an edge on whiffs, striking out 11 Rattlers while Labossiere sent 7 Paris boys out by the three-swing route.

Obituary

Charles A. Richardson

Charles A. Richardson, a prominent busines man, passed away at his home on Paris street about 5:30 Wednesday afternoon. For the past year he suffered from high blood pressure and failed to rally from two shocks that occurred within the past three weeks. His age was 65 years.

He was a native of Greenwood, born Sept. 9, 1865, the son of William and Hannah T. Barrows Richardson, and lived many years at Richardson Hollow. He was tax collector in Greenwood for ten years prior to coming to Norway in 1909. For many years he carried on a meat business, having a route in Norway. Since 1910 he has been located in a market at the corner of Maine and Bridge streets.

He was a member of the West Paris lodge of Odd Fellows, and th Norway Grange. He attended the Universalist church.

Besides his wife he is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Eva Frost, Mrs. Lena Raymond, Miss Helen E. Richardson, and two sons, Ralph W. and Lester E., of Norway. There are also two brothers, George W., South Paris, and A. J. Richardson of Wilton.

The funeral will be held at his late home on Paris street. Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock, daylight time. Burial will be in Greenwood.

Charles A. Carpenter

Charles A. Carpenter died Tuesday, Sept. 9th, at his late home in Swampscott, Mass., at the age of 83 years. The funeral was held at Swampscott, Thursday, and committal services at the grave at Norway Pine Grove cemetery, Friday, Sept. 12, at 10 o'clock.

Mr. Carpenter formerly lived in Norway, married Angie F. Shackley of this town and moved to Massachusetts about 56 years ago, but has been a frequent visitor with relatives here during the intervening years, where his genial disposition and cheery ways made him a favorite with both young and old alike.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Alice S. Newton of Swampscott with whom he has made his home for some years.

Miss Katherine Longley returned, Wednesday, to the Pennsylvania State College after the summer vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Longley.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Rowe and son of Norway, Mrs. Rowe's brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Drake, of Southern Pines, N. C., and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Drake and daughter, Miss Kathleen, of Auburn, are occupying the Ed. Anderson cottage at Locke Mills.

Mrs. Ruth M. Harvey, daughter of Rev. W. W. Lyon, and two grandchildren, Norma Estelle and Lloyd Bancroft Harvey, and also his other daughter, Miss Virginia Arline Lyon, have been spending a few days at the Methodist parsonage. They came from New York and Boston, the former home of Rev. and Mrs. Lyon.

The ladies of the Norway Farm Bureau will hold the September meeting, Tuesda, the 16th, and the work will be End Tables. As the August meeting was omitted, the project for that day "Slip Covers" will be included in the work at this time, making a busy day. Any who did not complete their pocket books at the last meeting, can do so at this time. There will be picnic lunch at noon, so to give more time for the work.

Rupert F. Aldrich, Norway

Elected to Office of Clerk of Courts

Rupert F. Aldrich of Norway came out victorious for the office of Clerk of Courts for Oxford County in the state election held last Monday on the republican ticket.

Mr. Aldrich is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer L. Aldrich of Norway and was born in Paris. He attended the schools of Paris, graduating from Paris high and attended Bates college one year as a beginning to his study of law, which he has continued for two years in Donald B. Partridge's office.

Mr. Aldrich is the owner of a small wood turning factory which he operates evenings for the manufacture of a fine quality buck saw frames, etc., which is a financial success.

During his high school career he was captain of the football team in 1926 and captain of the track team in 1925 and during his high school activities on the ball field he received injuries which ultimately resulted in the loss of his left leg.

Mr. Aldrich married Miss Mary Swan in 1928 and they reside in Norway.

THE LORDLY ST. JOHN'S

Written at Grand Falls, N. B.

By Frederick M. Davis

Oh thou beauteous wandering river,
Bed of gems, shining silver,
Work of God, thing of mystery,
Ever young, old of history.
Ruffled surface, breezes blowing
Ripples on thy face is showing
Laughing St. John's.

Sandy shoals, mosses growing,
Drenched with waters of thy flowing,
Polished stones, cooling beeches,
Ripest berries to you reaches,
Granite walls, vines a-clinging,
Thundering, roaring, sounding, singing,
Mighty St. John's.

Every day and every hour
Mill wheels turning with thy power,
Never idle, never weary,
Always laughing, bright and cheery,
High of bank, always sloping,
High of rank, never groping,
Tranquil St. John's.

Thunderous roar, voice of cannon,
Hurrying on through gorge and canyon,
Song birds bathing at thy fountain,
Kissed by fresh winds from the mountain,
Ever present, not forsaken,
Never sleep, never waken,
Murmuring St. John's.

Frogs a-sitting, jumping, thinking,
Cattle looking, standing, drinking,
Pierced by fish your waters breaking,
Wily musk-rat time is taking,
Flaky foam floating, spinning,
Cat-bird calling, swallows skimming,
Calm St. John's.

Patient angler, pole is gripping,
Humming bees, blossoms sipping,
Good canoe, paddle swinging,
Built for two, lovers singing,
Evening shadows, day is pining,
Life-like St. John's.

Sunlight glistening, sparkling ever,
Flowing on and on forever,
Silver reeds, tortoise sunning,
Just how long you have been running
Is a secret only known
Just to God and you alone,
Peaceful St. John's.

THE EDITOR'S SONG

If you have a tale to tell,
Boil it down!
Write it out and write it well,
Being careful how you spell;
Send the kernel, keep the shell;
Boil it down! Boil it down!
If you want the world to know,
Boil it down!
If you have good cause to crow;
If you'd tell how unions grow,
Whence you came or where you go,
Boil it down! Boil it down!
Then, when all the job is done,
Boil it down!
If you want to share our fun,
Know just how the paper's run,
Day by day, from sun to sun,
Boil it down! Boil it down!
When there's not a word to spare,
Boil it down!
Heave a sigh and lift a prayer,
Stamp your foot and tear your hair,
Then begin again with care—
Boil it down! Boil it down!
When, all done, you send it in,
We'll boil it down.
Where you end, there we begin;
This is our besetting sin;
With a scowl or with a grin,
We'll boil it down; boil it down.

RECIPES

Strawberry Shrub

Select sound, fruit, wash, measure, and place in a stone jar. For every four quarts of berries use one quart of vinegar. Cover the jar by tying a cheesecloth over it. Stir the berries daily for three or four days. Strain without squeezing and put into kettle, allowing one pound of sugar to each pint of liquid. Boil slowly for five minutes, bottle, cork and seal. Dilute with cold water for serving. For picnic use, fill quart bottle with diluted strawberry shrub, cork tightly and pack in a hamper.

Pineapple Punch

1 quart water
2 cups sugar
2 cups chopped pineapple
1 cup orange juice
1-2 cup lemon juice

Boil water, sugar and pineapple 20 minutes. Add fruit juices, cool, strain and dilute with iced water if necessary. Either fresh or canned pineapple may be used.

Why "Rent Insurance" Pays
Building operations are sometimes slow. It is not inconceivable that it may require six months or a year to rebuild your former home or store after it has been destroyed or damaged by fire. Let Rent Insurance pay for your temporary quarters during the building period. Ask us about this and other valuable forms of modern insurance.

Summer Guests Returned Home—Reunion of Brothers and Sisters—Party at Farm.

Christine Wade and Billy Warner of Milton, Mass., who have been boarding at Geo. Hobson's, also Mrs. Jessie Kugler of New Freedom, Pa., and son, Lawrence Worcester, of Boston, returned to their homes, Monday, Sept. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hodges and three children from Holden, Mass., were recent afternoon guests of Annie Hazelton. They are on their vacation, have been at Pine Point for one stopping place and then at Naples. They returned home, Sunday, Aug. 31.

Mr. and Mrs. Hallie Ford and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Longley from Bemis were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Littlefield one day recently; they also were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bertrand Rugg at Four Corners.

They are having large crowds at the Grange dances that are held every Saturday nights and the same good old times.

Mrs. Ezra Lebroke, who recently visited at her sister's, Mrs. Florence Carrier's at Alstead, N. H., met a brother, Henry Webber, whom she had not seen for twenty-five years: a brother, Rollin Webber, Pennsylvania, a sister, Nellie Lathrop, from Marshall, Mich., whom she had not seen for about twenty-five years; also another brother, Charlie Kanzer, Battle Creek, Mich., whom she had not seen for fifty years, so it was a very happy reunion for all. They were all born in Oxford, the children of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Webber, who died many years ago, also three children, Sam, Annie and Hannah, died several years ago.

A number from here are working at Fryeburg and East Waterford corn shops.

Mrs. Marilla Marston, Leola Elliott and son, Lawrence, Merline and Lilith Littlefield, and Dustin McAllister were at the Marston and Hazelton farm at Bridgton, recently. Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Littlefield, Annie Hazelton, Chas. Elliott, Neil Farmer were supper and overnight guests. They had a nice corn, chowder and marshmallow roast in the evening, also played cards. They all certainly had a pleasant time, only wished to stay longer.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas Knudsen and daughter, and Elmer Fiske were recent guests at Will Fiske's.

The 4-H Club had a supper and entertainment at the vestry, recently.

HARRISON

Mrs. Kneeland Dead—Schools Opened—Merrill Rented House—Keene Ill—Weston-Spurr Reunion.

The community was saddened and shocked by the sudden death of Mrs. Caroline Walker, widow of David Kneeland, who died Tuesday night, Sept. 2, in her sleep, and was found Wednesday morning. Mrs. Kneeland has conducted the Elms Inn for many years and was well known among a large circle. She was a charter member and past grand of the Woodland Rebekah Lodge and of Calvary Community Church. Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at Calvary Community hureh, with Rev. Andrew Young in attendance. There were many beautiful flowers, testifying to the love and esteem in which she was held by so many. Burial was in the family lot at Harrison Cemetery. Mrs. Kneeland leaves two sons, J. Theodore, Herman V. and two daughters, Mrs. Grace, wife of Fred S. Lamb, and Mrs. Jennie B., wife of Ralph E. Burnham, and several grandchildren, also a brother, John Walker, of Norway.

The schools opened Monday, with the same teachers, Miss Eva Jones, Miss Wyman and Mrs. Hilda B. Whitney.

If Mothers Only Knew

Thousands of Children Suffer from Worms, and Their Mothers Do Not Know What the Trouble Is.

Signs of Worms are: Constipation, deranged stomach, swollen upper lip, offensive breath, hard and full stomach with pains, pale face, eyes heavy, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, little red points on the tongue, starting during sleep with troublesome dreams, slow fever.

Mrs. H. N. Roberts, 502 Asylum St., Flint, Mich., wrote: "My little girl is relieved of her worms." And in a later letter wrote: "Baby is fine and it was your Dr. True's Elixir that helped her."

Cumberland and Oxford Union Pomona

In spite of the fact that Fryeburg Center is in the heart of the sweet corn region and that Sept. 4 is in the heart of corn picking time, on that day Fryeburg Grange entertained in a splendid manner Cumberland and Oxford Union Pomona. All officers were present except the Steward, Treasurer, Gate Keeper, and Lady Assistant Steward. At roll call the following Granges were represented: Frost Mt., Brownfield, 12, report by Harry Walker; Fryeburg, Fryeburg Center, 5, report by Charles Farrington; Kezar Lake, North Lovell, 2, report by Harry McKeen; Maple Grove, Convene, 2, report by Fred Meserve; South Bridgton 13, report by Carl Kilborn.

The fifth degree was conferred on William F. Carreiro of Hightland Grange, Bridgton, and Emmet W. Rankin of South Bridgton Grange, after which a fine dinner was served by the host grange. The afternoon was devoted to the Lecturer's program as follows:

Singing, Welcome Song
Address of Welcome.....Charles Farrington
Response .....Raymond Whitney
Vocal Solos, "In the Garden of Tomorrow" and "When the Dew is on the Rose".....Mrs. Ada Mercier
Address, Education—A "Big Business".....H. C. Lyseth of the State Dept. of Education
Address, The Work of the Dept. of Agriculture.....Geo. H. Babb of the State Dept. of Agriculture.
Singing, Work for the Night is Coming.....
Remarks .....Harry McKeen

The Lecturer announced that it is very doubtful if Charter Oak Grange at South Hiram will be able to entertain Pomona Oct. 2, as planned, so the next meeting will be Oct. 23, with Crystal Spring Grange at Denmark, when it is hoped Frank P. Washburn will be the speaker.

OXFORD—FORE STREET

Mrs. Cummings Celebrated Birthday—Guests at Twitchell's—Mrs. Stearns Entertained Club.

Flora Cummings' birthday anniversary, Sept. 3rd, was marked by letters, pictures and money from children in California. A birthday cake with five and one candles on it and a basket of vegetables from her sister, butter and fruit from Mrs. Ai Twitchell. Friends sent birthday cards, one of which showed the handwork of a "specialist". In the early afternoon Mildred Twitchell took her for a joy ride with Chestina Twitchell and Ella Sweetser to Paris Hill, where all called on Ethel Twitchell Daniels. Later in the afternoon Mrs. Davis, Clinton McKeen and family, with Alton Ames at the wheel came and gave her another joy ride. The day was finished by attending church in Oxford village with Elmer Twitchell and family. A full day with a good ending.

No frost, but the days of intense heat have ripened the Maple leaves till they are turning into red and gold. Maine folk in California mentioned in letters of the glory of our forests at this season of year. They have a yearning for the same even though California may be the land of gold and sunshine (and winter rain).

Miss Gladys Hapworth of Mechanic Falls visited a week with her friend, Miss Mary Twitchell.

Winfield Reynolds is helping Elmer Twitchell with the fall work.

Fred Gormand is assisting Albert Twitchell with the filling of Leon Twitchell's silo.

WORST YET TO COME

Forest fires have been raging over the country, sometimes in the most unexpected places, since the beginning of the drought. Few states have not had experience with them and the loss has mounted into staggering figures. The worst of it is that it can be expected to continue. Tabulations show that over a ten year period they have been most numerous in late September and through all of October.

Right now seems a most fitting time to again warn motorists, hunters, and everyone who goes into the woods and fields to be extremely careful of the way they handle their matches, cigarette stubs and cigars. And don't overlook the danger of leaving live coals when you are through with a camp fire. Carelessness causes almost all outdoor fires; not one in ten thousand is started intentionally.

The entire country is hard hit by the drought and needs to conserve every dollar's worth of property. It's a poor time to be careless. Be constantly on your guard and caution your friends and neighbors to do the same.

A stock broker is a sympathetic listener, but he will not return your losses.

Cattle and Swine

While this section of the fair was not crowded, there were numerous herds and single entries with state-wide reputation.

Purebred Brown Swiss cattle, 12 head, were shown by C. A. Flint, proprietor of Lakeside Farm, Norway. Those were but presentative specimens selected from his herd and a fair average of his complete stock.

Ayrshires numbering fourteen head were from the farm of Ernest C. Field & Son, Green.

J. A. Wilson, Brunswick, exhibited 12 head of Dutch Belted, familiar at fairs around the state.

Several head of Shorthorn cattle from the barns of Harold E. Whitman, Buckfield, made a worthwhile exhibit.

The Holsteins were prominent in the middle row of sheds. Arthur D. Cummings of South Paris had his famous herd of 18 head, containing a long string of blue ribbon winners. Another herd of 18 head was shown by R. A. Robinson & Son.

F. O. Berry & Son, Litchfield, had 15 head, comprising Holsteins and Shorthorns.

Among the beefers and pulling teams were ten yoke brought over from Turner by L. E. Stevens. E. R. Staples of Litchfield and Fred Staples of Welchville offered several head of huskies for the pulling ring. Oher cattle for the stone drag were shown by Roger S. Bragdon, North Berwick; Scammon & Williams, Topsham; P. H. Fogg, Casco; A. W. Weston, Bolster's Mills; Elmer J. and C. L. Thomes, Harrison; Edward Boothby, Costigan and Hawkes & Wilson, Cumberland Center.

Spaulding Abbott of Norway was not entered in this department, the first time in many years. He sold most of his stock, but kept two yoke of oxen for the heavy farm work.

The River Basin Farms, Portland, had the largest display of swine, including the Poland China and Berkshire breeds. A large boar, two sows, one with a litter and a pen of half grown porkers made up their show.

Hitting the High Spots

Pony Rides—Musical Gas Tank—Fifteen Hundred School Children On Hand Tuesday

Children could ride to their heart's content on real ponies, not driven mechanically. Henry T. Ashley of Massachusetts had nine ponies in a lane near the midway and "Lime" Winslow of East Bethel had another string on his customary spot inside the trotting oval. Both stables had excellent business.

The Norway-Paris Band, Allie Cota leader, provided music three days and two evenings for concerts and vaudeville. Popular marches and song arrangements were featured on the band stand and at the races.

Ernest Dyer of South Portland, secretary of the State Humane Society and the local agent, Morey, were on hand three days to prevent harsh treatment around the pulling matches. So far as reported, the drivers kept within the officers' interpretation of the law.

C. W. Bedford, representative of the Darling Automobile Co., of Auburn, was at the fair, Wednesday, showing the De Soto Eight to prospects.

A curious car was the "Emma Jettick" torpedo bus, putting out advertising for the well known shoe, carried by a local dealer.

The new Banner gasoline, introduced by the Socony Company, was advertised by a truck carrying a musical gas tank. This played and amplified electrically all the popular records. The volume reached far beyond the clanging implements of torture along the midway. A fully equipped car for scientific tests gave the motor minded something to consider during quiet hours.

Ticket sellers at the gate were in desperate straits for coin during the rush, Wednesday noon. Script in large denominations flowed in streams, but silver was sluggish. Making change caused some worry until the situation was relieved by sounding the S. O. S.

The Norway pumper from the fire department was kept in a convenient spot near the main entrance for emergency. Chief Giles Frost, Driver Seth Chipman, and firemen Myron Paragard and George Hall were within easy calling distance.

It is estimated 1500 school children were the guests of the Society on Young Americans' Day. They had free admission to the grounds and grand stand all day and evening, and made the best of the invitation. The youngsters were liberal with their patronage of paid attractions and gave the vaudeville artists generous applause.

A new harmless dumb animal act appeared on the midway. Buying chances on the probable course of mud turtles in their meanderings across the floor, held the crowd at one game, for its novelty. Skill had nothing to do with the outcome and the turtles were not trained. Funny how a fool turtle would almost win, then rubber neck while another took away the prize.

Frosty evenings were too much for Miss Madeline Berlo, the high diver. On Wednesday evening she cut her vaudeville act short because the water was too cold. Spectators shivering in overcoats didn't blame the performer for "squealing." A woman clad in nothing much but a smile is not prepared for September eve or September morn.

Secretary Wm. O. Frothingham had his hands full, attending to congratulations showered upon him for his election Monday, as high sheriff of Oxford County.

President L. E. McIntire is proud of his brother officers and superintendents. "They have taken hold of their work wonderfully well and cooperated to make this fair a success," he said. "We get together, map out the duties of each, and results follow," is the president's good word.

The Norway pumper crew stationed on the grounds, put out a fire in a concession tent on the midway Wednesday afternoon. A blaze started near the stables after the fireworks the same evening and threatened to gain some headway. Hand chemical extinguishers wer used in both cases.

Agricultural Implements

Under the Big Top

Under the familiar tent, A. W. Walker & Son, South Paris, provided a large showing of late agricultural and dairy machinery. The new "Hog Rooter", a harrow warranted to turn the most stubborn sod and a late number in their salesroom was examined with interest. There were disk harrows, planters, ensilage cutters, spreaders, harvesters, sprayers and tractors. For the dairy, the milking machine and separators were in practical working operation from gasoline engines, sold by the company.

George Skinner, the local manager, was assisted by a corps of salesmen from the main office.

Down the midway, C. A. Austin of Mechanic Falls, represented the firm Austin & Boyer of Mechanic Falls, dealers in furniture and agricultural implements. A Fair Day washing machine was in operation and sampes of the Oliver spreader, the Farmall tractor and Fairbanks gasoline engine were conspicuous. Mr. Austin is a familiar figure at this fair, being formerly with the International Harvester Company. He has a new place of business at the Falls and enlarged the building to accommodate a decided expansion.

Here and There

Horace C. Kimball of Norway completed his twentieth year as special officer around the main gate.

W. Byron Verge of Portland, shipyard poet, song writer and vocalist, familiar at the fairs about eight years ago, sold subscriptions for a Portland daily paper. He has retired from singing with the band.

Sergt. Kelly of the U. S. Recruiting Station at Lewiston, had a recruiting tent on the midway. He secured four applicants and two passed the preliminary examination.

A small army of helpers in all departments was needed to keep the show going. The main gates and ticket office were handled by Eugene Lowell, Merritt Welch, Dave Klain, Urshal Gammon, Ned Whitney, Thomas Klegg, Allie Estes, Bert Pike, Henry Dean and Gordon Hayes. On Fair street, Henry Favor and Harold A. Anderson sold and collected pasteboards. S. F. Verrill was assistant at headquarters. Other helpers were Sanford Brown, Clifford C. Frost, Don Chapman, Howard DeCoster, C. Lowell Barnes, Merton Wyman, Eugene C. Libby, Willis Ames, Lewis Button, Edmund Decoteau, Fred Lafrance and others. Special officers were Ernest Hutchins, Horace C. Kimball and Alfred Gerarde of Berlin, N. H.

Announcement was made from headquarters that 25,000 attended the fair, Wednesday, including the evening show.

John Abbott of South Paris was night watchman on the grounds during the week. This has been his job for ten years and more.

Clerks who received entries and tabulated premiums were Mrs. Sarah Parlin, Mrs. Frank S. Clark and Mrs. Carroll Wilson, all of South Paris.

Horace A. Brown of Norway handled the score cards and was assisted in selling by Lawrence Smith, John Morrison, Lester Card, Dolore Lafrance, George Lafrance.

Exhibition Game

Wylos 5; Norway 4

The Norway Pine Tree Leaguers proved a tough nut for the Wylos of Danvers, Mass., at the fair grounds, Saturday afternoon. Everything was fast with Harry Delano, Oxford's veteran south paw, on the pulling line for Norway. He allowed the visiting heavy weights but 10 hits and passed 2.

Delano had excellent support as twenty-three assists behind him will show. Steve Klament at third had a breezy session with 5 put-outs and eight assists for his fielding record. Lee, the leader of the Wylo's heavy section garnered 3 hits, C. Bevereen was the runner-up for the visitors.

Along the Midway

Many Shows and Amusements

The fun trail was there, bigger, brighter, better and busier than ever before. Two main trails were laid out and concessions were crowded to make compact fronts.

Three beano games flourished, one was operated by Wm. H. Stone Post, American Legion, of Norway, with Jack Flynn, Wilbur Downing and Roy Snow in charge.

Among other local people with various concessions were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Richardson of Norway; Herbert Butler, Norway, and Mr. and Mrs. Jim York of South Paris.

Phrenology has taken the place of fortune telling and three or more gypsy maids of uncertain age told a whole lot in their bump readings.

At least one auction room thrived under brilliant salesmen of the high pressure kind. A raft of goods said to be of uncertain value was unloaded for real green money. Flash was everywhere from the candy floss and fried clam emporiums up through the line to wearing apparel and parlor decorations.

Soft drinks, frozen cream, hot dogs, pop corn, candy in bathing girl boxes, fried clams, oyster stews and three course dinners appeared to hit all shades of appetites and morbid hankerings.

Pitch-till-you-win, push the autos, drive a nail, knock down the milk bottles, pick out the turtle and other money coaxers had places in the midway complex.

The half has not been told, for the general comment is the fair had the best midway for many years.

NORTHEAST LOVELL

Mrs. Mattie Fox has been doing some cleaning at the Slab City and Lovell Center schoolhouses.

Mrs. Henry Fox went to the Conway Hospital, Saturday, with her son, Geo., to have his tonsils and adenoids removed.

Mrs. Bert Kendall and Mrs. Charles Chaplin worked the latter part of last week at Trout Lake.

Bert Kendall went to Bridgton, Friday with his daughter, Iva, to have some teeth extracted.

The Slab City school began Monday, Sept. 8, with the same teacher, Miss Muriel Barnes of Clifford, Mass.

Eating House Square

Changing to Suit the Progress of Time

The section where regular dinners have been served for fifty years is passing from the time honored stage to make an adjustment with modern conditions.

Next the exhibition hall where the South Paris Congregational church served for many years, Gassett catered with oyster stews. The adjoining building was vacant and beyond the Methodist church of South Paris served regular dinners with Mrs. C. L. Buck in charge. A check room for wraps and bundles conducted by the society was in charge of Mrs. Frank Dudley.

Down the line the Twitchell Eating House, conducted by Mrs. Chestina Twitchell and Ai Twitchell drew the usual trade with a complete menu. For forty-four years this place has catered to the public and is the dean of eating houses on the line. Established in a shed by the late Eli Twitchell during the early days of the fair the place has prospered over a long span of years even to the fourth generation. Jesse P. Edwards, who has been door keeper for twenty years, was on duty as usual.

The former eating house used by the Universalists was changed this year to a dancing pavilion with the Black and White Orchestra for music.

One of the best known places for a good dinner is the Pines of Maine Eating House, conducted by Mrs. Florence Westleigh. The place is an all summer resort, where home cooked food prepared and sold, but during the fair business booms like that of the neighbors. This was once the Lovejoy place, where Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Lovejoy served many years and gained many friends. However, new buildings have appeared on the spot.

Way out on the end connecting with the midway, the Bill Twitchell place had the latch string out and served many patrons of long acquaintance. A tempting menu was prepared each day and pleasing decorations added to the attractiveness of the dining hall.

SOUTH PARIS NEWS

Ripley Reunion

A reunion of the family of Mrs. Ella Ripley and the late George K. Ripley was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Parlin in the Partridge District on Sunday. The day was ideal, and was happily spent in reminiscing, in pitching horseshoes and other sports.

At noon a bountiful picnic dinner was served on the lawn to thirty-five members of the family, including four great grandchildren.

Those present were: Mrs. Ella Ripley, South Paris; Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Ripley, South Paris; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Ripley and sons, Billie and Carlton, Rockland; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Glidden, Auburn; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kimball, Norway; Mr. and Mrs. George Byrus, Bowdoinham; George Ripley, South Paris; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Simard, Auburn; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Berry, Auburn; Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Ripley, South Paris; Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Willey, Mechanic Falls; the Misses Doris Simard, Lora Berry, Eleanor and Alberta Willey, Mechanic Falls; Janice and Francis Ripley, South Paris; Harold Kimball, Norway; George Glidden, Harry Glidden, Jr., Auburn.

Other relatives present were James D. Ripley, North Paris; Mr. and Mrs. Alton Ripley, Portland; Lila and Adeline Emerson, Norway; Bertha Bennett, Norway.

Freeman T. Crommett

The death of Freeman T. Crommett occurred August 21, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Leslie W. Twitchell, in Wakefield, Mass. Mr. Crommett was in his eightieth year and was born in Sebec, Me. For a number of years he was a resident of Chelsea, in which city his wife died.

For fifty years Mr. Crommett was a member of the Suffolk Bar and in 1900 he was a candidate for the attorney generalship of this Commonwealth. He long had had offices in the

Wood Not Injured

The forest products laboratory says that as far as it knows the treatment of wood with fire retardants such as ammonium phosphate, ammonium sulphate or ammonium chloride does not injure the mechanical strength of wood so as to make it unsuitable for use as joist, studs, rafters, etc.

Methodist

10.30, morning service; 12.00, Church School; 6.15, Epworth League; 7.30, Evening Gospel and Song Service.

Last Sunday morning, Sept. 7, there was a very helpful sermon preached by the pastor, Rev. W. W. Lyon, who took for his subject "The Meaning of Life." Rev. Mr. Lyon spent the first few minutes of his discourse in explaining the first ten verses of the 5th chapter of the gospel of John, which in themselves were sufficient food for thought. The choir rendered specially arranged Sabbath morning selections.

In the evening a very good sized audience was in attendance to hear the inspirational hour of song and sermon. The pastor took as his subject, the Apostle Paul's statement to the Galatian people where he called them "foolish Galatians." In his usual convincing way, Mr. Lyon held his audience with a few keen, rapid-fire illustrations of Rubber Kings, and men of finance now extant. The pastor told the congregation that on Sunday evening, Sept. 21, he would begin his Fall and Winter program of Sunday evening special 'Feature Hours.' On the evening of Sept. 21, Rev. Mr. Lyon expects to begin a series of sermon-stories on the very much talked of novel and book "The Man Nobody Knows" by Bruce Barton. This first series has been a request, since the book itself has been an internationally known seller. "These Sunday evenings are going to attract big crowds of people," says Rev. Mr. Lyons, "because the general run of God's children want to hear a new story by some able author who has obtained a new vision of the Kingdom of Heaven." Good singing, excellent inspirational moments and evenings of spiritual comfort and uplift is the aim of the pastor at the Methodist Church.

The Ladies Aid of the M. E. Church will meet with Mrs. Carrie Philbrook, Friday, Sept. 19, at 2:30.

Baptist

Thursday: C. E., 7:30. Topic, Our Crusade Plans; leader, Albert Starbird. Consecration meeting.

Sunday: Morning worship at 10.45. Preacher, Rev. Harry McIntire of Otisfield. Soloist, Harold Haskell. Bible School at 12. Evening meeting at 7.

Next Wednesday the Home Department will meet in the vestry at 7:15. Hostess, Mrs. John Cox.

Universalist

Rev. Conard B. Rheiner, the new minister, will preach at 10 o'clock on the subject, "Everyman's Worship".

The first session of the Sunday school will convene at 11:10 a. m. New scholars will be enrolled at this session. Mrs. Mae Hutchins will begin her duties as superintendent.

The Y. P. C. U. will meet at 6 p. m. All officers are urged to be present as well as all old and prospective members. Earle Pierce, president, will preside.

A good sized congregation greeted Mr. Rheiner last Sunday when he spoke on "The Dilemma of Open-Mindedness".

The Ladies' Circle furnished lunches during county fair and had three busy days, Wednesday being a rush and Thursday morning everyone had to get into the cooking to replenish for the Thursday work.

The fall meetings of the Ladies' Circle will be resumed the last Friday in the month, the meeting to be held at the home of the President, Mrs. Maude Murch, Highland avenue.

NORWAY NURSING SERVICE

Preparing for the Opening of Schools—the Work for August

Norway has again had the service of a Puble Health Nurse one day a week for this month, August. Each Wednesday, with one exception, a Well Baby and Pre-School Conference has been held in the office of the Community Nurse. On Wednesday, Aug. 27th, the Public Health Nurses' Section of the Maine State Nursing Association held their annual mid-summer meeting at the State House in Augusta. As this was a valuable meeting to attend from the point of view of the nurse, the regular day of Wednesday was changed to Thursday, for that week only.

A list of children entering school in the fall, was given the nurse by the superintendent of schools, and this list supplemented by another from the town clerk of Norway was used to send letters to the parents of each of these pre-school children, telling them that the nurse would be in town on Wednesday of each week; and that if each child were brought to her office, his school health record would be started. This would consist of a history of the diseases of the child, his correct weight, height and his average weight for age and height, his vision and hearing test when advisable, age, sex, address, parents' name, etc. The child is then advised to see his dentist and family physician for examinations. Thus, if this is done sometime before the opening of school, adequate time is given for the correction of defects, that may be found necessary. This school health record is a permanent record, going through school with the child. To date thirteen pre-school children have taken advantage of this, and have been to the nurse. All parents having children entering school in the fall are urged to follow this excellent example.

Each week there has been an exhibit, interesting to mothers. One of toilet articles, suitable for infants; infants' food, including the type of vegetables, canned economically in small cans, unflavored and strained; and infant's clothes. Next month one of the exhibits will be the correct type of shoes from the first pair to the first shoes for walking. Another will be "name necklaces" for the new-born. These beads, with the name of the child may be taken to the hospital with the mother.

A trip has been made to West Paris, which is out of the Norway Nursing Service's territory, but it was made at the requst of one of the physicians as a follow-up visit on a discharged sanitorium patient.

Plans were made for the Oxford County Fair. This Service had a booth there. The exhibit was "The School Lunch". There were samples of five ideal lunches, simple and practical. Recipe books and a recipe leaflet were given away, containing suggestions and recipes for school lunches. This was to show children, parents and teachers that hot lunches are always possible, even with limited facilities and means.

The children who were found to be underweight during the school year have been conscientiously trying to gain, and ach week finds some of them checking up on their gains. A simple graphic chart has been made by the nurse, and the pupils find these interesting, as it is fun to watch the line go up and up, straight instead of peaked.

Mrs. Harry W. Kimball spent the week end with her daughter, Mrs. Charles C. Willey, in Mechanic Fals. Miss Eleanor Willey, who has been visiting her grandparents, returned home with her.

The corn canning factory of the Portland Packing Co. is running evenings to keep up with the corn supply. The shop operated until midnight on Tuesday night to give the help Wednesday at the fair.

French Buildings Burned

C. G. French had the great misfortune to lose his whole set of farm buildings by fire of an unknown origin, Tuesday forenoon. The greater part of the household goods in the lower part of the house was saved. Nothing was saved on the upper floor. None of the stock was burned except two hogs and some forty-five rabbits. The Fred Pierce house, occupied by Edwin Austin and family, caught fire from flying sparks and was badly damaged by fire, smoke and water. The old North Chapel was also on fire at one time from a flying spark on the roof, but was extinguished without much damage to the building. Mr. French has moved his goods to Elgin Greenleaf's house, the former Earl Barker place, and will locate there for the present. They have the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community.

Arthur Bean, draftsman for Fellows Gear Shaper Co., at Springfield, Vermont, and his sister, Miss Alma Bean, of Haverhill, Mass., were guests of their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Judkins, Wednesday night of last week.

HERCULES GLOBULAR STAR CLUSTER M.13

Messier, the French astronomer, seeking comets, catalogued the nebulae and star clusters to the number of 103, these being the most prominent objects to be observed that lay beyond the solar system. Now, this list is superceded by that of the English astronomer Dreyer, a newly compiled list of more than 13,000 objects, under the title of "New General Catalog", so Hercules cluster is known as Messier 13 or N. G. C. 6205.

Star clusters are divided into two classes, globular and open. This globular cluster is one of only about a hundred yet found in the sky. Its distance from us is about 35.000 light years and it is approaching us with a velocity of 180 miles a second. All globular star clusters seem to be hurrying toward the plane of the Milky-Way, while the spira nebulae are receding from it. The stars in the Hercules cluster are distributed very systematically, thinning out toward the edges, the limit of which is about 250 light years from the center, so the cluster has a diameter of 500 l. y. or three thousand million millions miles. We occupy the position of a vanishing point of prospective barely visible with the naked eye. The cluster, one of the finest known, is situated quite mid-way on an imaginary line from Vega to Arcturus. Hercules M. 13 contains some fifty thousand suns, with the present available power of photography. With the 36 inch Lick refractor, as many as two or three thousand faint star images are counted in the field, all within the apparent one-fourth diameter of the moon, and as many as all the stars that can be seen above the horizon with the naked eye.

The brightest stars in the cluser are 250 times fainter than the faintest stars visible without optical aid. The brightest stars in the cluster, mostly of a reddish color, must be giants, stars like Betelgeuze and Antares, which are 200 to 400 times the diameter of our own sun.

The Hercules cluster is concentrated at the center, yet no more crowded than the ships of the sea. It is even estimated that Hercules M.13 contains the equivalent of a million of suns like our own, and the distance of each from its nearest neighbor is thousands of millions of miles.

It is probable that the cluster contains many stars that are too faint to be seen at all so that the magnitude of the faintest in the cluster may be somewhere in the twenties. There is a difference between the globular and the open star clusters. While the design of the globulars are organized systems in themselves, the open clusters seem to be aimlessly scattered by some careless hand. At the center of Hercules M.13 cluster the stars cannot be separately distinguished even with the largest telescopes.

If light is such a thing as a glorious kingdom, the center of this noble cluster must be a throne. Thinking, allegorially, after demis, should the Great Creator, on our awakening, take us by the shoulders and say to us, "now you are deprived of the dense substance which has held you to earth so long and being fortified against all destroying elements, you may make choice of a far journey, to be transported by means swifter than light travels, Thought, of all the goals which have been revealed, which will you choose to visit?" If choice was imperative, it seems that Hercules cluster would be the logical and desired goal, because some things must be "going on" among all these not too overcrowded suns.

EAST WATERFORD

R. E. Pinkham and L. E. McIntire attended state fair one day.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Heath, son, John, and Mrs. Omar Moxcey were in Norway, Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rolfe, Mr. and Mrs. Omar Moxcey, son, Sherlin, and daughter, Leona, spent Sunday at Walnut Hill.

NATIVE OF HARTFORD DEAD

Mrs. Elizabeth C. (Briggs) Hanson, who died Sept. 8, at the Baptist home, 60 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston, Mass., was a native of Hartford, Maine, and was ninety years old. She was the daughter of Ellis and Hannah (Doten) Briggs, and the widow of William Hanson. No near relatives survive. The funeral was held at the Home, Sept. 10.

Saco Valley United Parish

Ministering to Lovell, Fryeburg Harbor, North, West and Center Fryeburg, Stow, Union Hill and Toll Bridge

The bi-monthly meeting of the United Parish Council was held in the Universalist church, North Fryeburg on Wednesday, with David A. Bradley, president of the council, in the chair. Budget affairs took up most of the time of the meeting, and it was decided that all local church treasurers make a special effort so that all arrears be covered as soon as possible. The Rev. Cymbrid Hughes, superintendent of the Portland District of the M. E. church, was present and gave valuable advice to the parish officers.

At the parish services on Sunday special reference was made to the opening of schools and the freshmen entering the Academy or college were honored guests.

In the absence of the Rev. Walter Pavy, who expects to take part of his vacation this week, there will be no service at North Fryeburg or Stow next Sunday. The Rev. Clifford Cross will preach at Lovell and the Harbor at the usual hours.

The Harbor Epworth League held a very happy surprise social in honor of Norman Gray and James Guptill, Monday evening. The early part of the program was filled with games, races and contests. Just before ice cream and cake were served, Rev. Walter Pavy called on Mrs. Cross and Mrs. Pavy to present gifts to the guests of honor who are leaving for college in a few days. The Rev. Clifford Cross and David A. Bradley told of the splendid work of these young men in the church. Norman as assistant superintendent of the church school and president of the Men's Club, and Jim as secretary of the church school and for several sessions vice president of the Epworth League. Jim Merrill, who leaves with Norman for the University of Maine, was also present as a guest. The affair also became an impromptu reception to the new teachers of the Harbor, Stow and Union Hill schools.

Mrs. Gladys Haskell is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rugg, during her vacation from her duties at Hebron Sanitorium.

WEST STONEHAM

Gammon-McAllister Reunion

The annual reunion of the Gammon-McAllister family was held on Sunday, Aug. 31, at the old home place of Weeman and William Gammon in West Stoneham. The day seemed made for the occasion and people began to arrive early and kept coming till afternoon.

A bountiful picnic lunch was served at noon and a short business session directly after, called to order by Harold Gammon of West Paris, president of the association, then there was a very exciting game of baseball between the married and single ones, both male and female. The rest visited and watched the game, thoroughly enjoying every minute of the time and realizing it was all too short. After the game was finished, all gathered together and closed with singing many old songs, the final one, most appropriate, 'God Be With ou Till We Meet Again".

With sadness we noticed the passing to a higher life of three loved ones who had met with us before, Willard C. Barker, Lawille and George Davis, all of Bridgton. It makes us realize the uncertainty of life! They are gone, but not forgotten, only gone on before, that is all. Much of the success of these gatherings is due to the untiring efforts of Mr. and Mrs. John Grover and their fine family of five children, Douglass, Harriet, William, Stella and last, but not least, little John Douglass, Jr., only five weeks old, who was present and had his picture taken! We truly appreciate all they do for our comfort on the old home place.

Those present were: Eugene Sawyer, Edith and Bertha Sawyer, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Woodman, Westbrook, Mrs. Mabel Jack, Iola and Mary Jack, West Falmouth, Mrs. Emma Barker Smith, Mrs. Bessie Barker Pickett, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Emerson, Bridgton, Mr. and Mrs. Walter McKeen, Dorothy McKeen, Bridgton, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Wilberger, Jamaica Plains, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilberger and daughter, Norma, Norway, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bennett, South Paris, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gammon, West Paris, Mr. and Mrs. Max Eastman and daughters, Olive and Maxine, Lovell, Warren Gammon, Lovell, Urshal Gammon, Jr., Norway, Ernest Gammon and son, Clayton, West Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. McKeen and daughter, Hester, North Lovell, Mr. and Mrs. Sargent Coleman and Eudora and Sargent, Jr., Lovell Center, Mr. and Mrs. Z. McAllister, North Waterford, Willis McAllister, North Lovell, Mr. and Mrs. Willis McKeen and daughter, North Waterford, Martha Chipman, Arlington, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Green, Don and Harry Andrews, North Waterford, Mr. and Mrs. Enfield Plummer, Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Plummer and daughters, Ethelbert and Athalie Plummer, Sweden, Mrs. Bertha Keniston, Kingston, N. H., Mrs. H. Knox Bickford and children, H. Knox, Jr., Mary E. and Barbara Ann, Norway, Mr. and Mrs. B. Gallant, Elizabeth Ballant, Westbrook, Mrs. Elizabeth Davis Merrill and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Davis, Mrs. Fannie Warren and grandson, all of Bridgton, Master Hugh Saunders, Woodfords, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Davis and children, Elizabeth, Charles E., Jr., and George Henry, Arlington Heights, Mass., Gerald Wheaton, Belmont, Mass., W. C. Brooks, Portland. There may have been others, but we have not the names, truly hope there will be a much larger company in 1931. This was the largest up to date.

EAST STONEHAM

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Nelson have returned from a camping trip in the White Mountains.

Mrs. Solon McAllister has returned from her summer work at Farrington's on Lake Kezar.

Mr. and Mrs. Merton McAllister and son, Norton spent Thursday at Kennebunk beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Verrill spent the week end with relatives in South Paris.

Mr. Johnson of Essex, Mass., is visiting his daughter, who is the grammar school teacher.

Mrs. Elizabeth Raynor is at her home here, after her summer work in Lovell.

Virginia Smith of Bethel recently spent several days with Rita McAllister.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Dodge and son and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kneeland of South Portland were at Merton McAllister's, Sunday.

CHAPTER XVII

A Business Interest in a Bad Way

Mr. Benton called Tom to his office one day and informed him that his clothing affairs were not satisfactory to him and he was debating in his mind whether he hadn't better put him into the store as general manager and get someone else to run the express business. He said Elliott was a good buyer and honest, but lacked the snap to call in trade, and the business appeared to be running down on his hands. He desired Tom to think the matter over and decide whether he cared to give up his situation and thought he could make any change in the clothing business that would improve it. "Take plenty of time," he said, "to consider the matter, then come and tell me what you think of it. I know that you have had no experience in that line, and may not like it and while I am satisfied that as you are so resourceful that there would be a marked improvement in the management of the business should you take hold of it, I wouldn't have you do it if you didn't like it, just to please me." To this Tom said:

"If I can be of any use to you, Mr. Benton, I am willing to undertake anything you desire, but I should hate to take hold of a thing and fail, for I doubt very much whether I'd make a first class salesman, but possibly I might make some improvement on Elliott."

"Well, my boy, I know you won't fail in anything you take hold of and that you would be a great improvement on him, but take time and consider the proposition carefully." They were here interrupted by the entrance of Mr. Chorus Whiting, who wished to consult Mr. Benton on some matter of business and Tom left for the express office. On his way there he came to the conclusion that while he greatly desired to assist Mr. Benton in all matters that concerned him, yet he felt that he would never be satisfied with being a mere salesman in a store, but he would go and see how Luther Elliott was conducting the business. Accordingly having an opportunity during the day to spend a short time away from the express office, he went and found Elliott sitting in the rear end of the building, smoking a cob pipe, and reading one of Anna Katherine Green's detective stories.

"Hello, Tom," was his greeting. "I've got greatly interested in 'The Leavenworth Case'. I don't believe the girl committed the murder, do you? But perhaps you never read the book?"

"Yes, Elliott, I have, but it was sometime ago. If the girl committed the murder it wouldn't be much of a detective story, would it?"

"No, Tom, but who in time did it—the sister?"

"If I should tell you, there wouldn't be much interest left in the story for you. The book is written to keep the reader guessing, pointing to first one and then another, as the murderer, to maintain the interest to the end, and then fixing the crime on one wholly unsuspected."

Elliott, keeping his seat, to a man who had entered the store: "Do you want anything, Steve?"

Steve: "I don't know, I'll look round a little and see what you've got." He did so and soon went out without purchasing anything. Another fellow—a stranger to Tom, entered, looked at some of the goods in the front part of the building and went out again. Elliot had not even asked him whether he wished to buy anything.

Tom felt that he ought to make some reasonable excuse for being there, as he was not in the habit of loafing around in such places, and he asked when Elliott expected to get in the winter stock of clothing.

"I don't have the least idea," he replied, "when the old man will order it done. I saw in a Boston paper that there's to be a bankrupt sale of ready-made clothing in that city a week from Saturday next, and if one could go there before or when it takes place a mighty good trade might be secured."

"See you later, Elliott," said Tom as he left the store with this thought in mind: "He will run the business into the ground unless something is done to change his habits and that, too, very soon."

Before going to sleep that night, Tom, feeling that the matter was urgent for Mr. Benton, determined to see him without delay and propose a plan for his consideration, which he thought might relieve him from further embarrassment in running the store. Mr. Benton had said to him that the conducting of the business, as a permanent thing was repugnant to him, but that he did want to see it in such good shape that he could dispose of it at a fair profit, or at least, without loss. And this had suggested the idea that if the bankrupt stock of goods mentioned by Elliott, or so much of it as it would be advisable to purchase, could be obtained at a reasonable price, a general "mark down" sale of both stocks might be made, when the building and lot could be easily disposed of or let. To carry out this idea, it would be necessary to have the active co-operation of Charley and for Elliott to go with them to Boston to secure what was required for an additional stock of clothing. Then it would be essential to cover the whole back country with posters and handbills of the sale, which he and Charley could do, and they would take charge of it, with Elliott's and what other assistance should be required. Accordingly the next day he called at the bank and informed Mr. Benton how he had found the situation of affairs at the store; Elliott's statements about the bankrupt stock of ready-made clothing and his plan for a mark down sale, and he added: "Of course, Mr. Benton, you may not like to have it go out that you are conducting such a scheme, but you can have it understood that you have turned the matter over to Charley and me, to see what we can do."

"That idea, my boy, strikes me quite favorably, and I will talk with Charley about it and decide upon what is best right away."

Mr. Benton did so at tea time. Charley was enthusiastic over the idea, and exclaimed: "Oh dad, that's great. I'd like nothing better than to see what Tom and I can do. I'm tired of being a mere clerk. There will be lots of excitement in it and a necessity for hustling."

"I'm glad to hear you say that," said his father. "Nothing would suit me better than to see you a hustling and successful business man. Tom says this thing can't be pulled off without your assistance. Glad you are so enthusiastic about it." (to his wife) "I think, Mary, I'll let the boys see what is in them for business."

"That's right, Jarvis. They will succeed. Two smarter young men can't be found in this town or anywhere else. I'm proud of them. All they need is an opportunity to show what they can do," his wife replied.

"Can't I do something to help father?" inquired Maude.

"And is my girl interested in this affair? Well! Well!"

"Of course, father, I'm interested. When the boys go to Boston to purchase goods, Betty and I, with Bob's help to make the deliveries, can manage the express business, and during the sale we will be needed in the store."

They were here interrupted by the entrance of Mr. Cyrus Whiting, who wished to consult Mr. Benton on some matter of business and left for the express office. On his return he came to the conclusion that he greatly desired to assist Mr. Benton in all matters that concerned him, and felt that he would never be satisfied with being a mere salesman in a store. He would go and see how Dennis Elliott was conducting the business. Accordingly having an opportunity during the day to spend a short time from the express office, he went and found Elliott sitting in the rear of the building, smoking a cob pipe, and reading one of Anna Katherine Green's detective stories.

"Hello, Tom," was his greeting. "I've got greatly interested in 'The Leavenworth Case'. I don't believe the girl committed the murder, do you? But things you never read the book?"

"Yes, Elliott, I have, but it was sometime ago. If the girl committed the murder it wouldn't be much of a detective story, would it?"

"No, Tom, but who in time did it—the sister?"

"If I should tell you, there wouldn't be much interest left in the story for you. The book is written to keep the reader guessing, pointing to first one and then another, as the murderer, to maintain the interest to the end, and then fixing the crime on one wholly unsuspected."

Elliott, keeping his seat, to a man who had entered the store: "Do you want anything, Steve?"

Steve: "I don't know, I'll look around a little and see what you've got." He did so and soon went out without purchasing anything. Another fellow—a stranger to Tom, entered, looked at some of the goods in the front part of the building and went out again. Elliott had not even asked him whether he wished to buy anything.

Tom felt that he ought to make some reasonable excuse for being there, as he was not in the habit of loafing around in such places, and he asked when Elliott expected to get in the winter stock of clothing.

"I don't have the least idea," he replied, "when the old man will order it done. I saw in a Boston paper that there's to be a bankrupt sale of ready-made clothing in that city a week from Saturday next, and if one could go there before or when it takes place a mighty good trade might be secured."

"See you later, Elliott," said Tom as he left the store with this thought in mind: "He will run the business into the ground unless something is done to change his habits and that, too, very soon."

Before going to sleep that night, Tom, feeling that the matter was urgent for Mr. Benton, determined to see him without delay and propose a plan for his consideration, which he thought might relieve him from further embarrassment in running the store. Mr. Benton had said to him that the conducting of the business, as a permanent thing was repugnant to him, but that he did want to see it in such good shape that he could dispose of it at a fair profit, or at least, without loss. And this had suggested the idea that if the bankrupt stock of goods mentioned by Elliott, or so much of it as it would be advisable to purchase, could be obtained at a reasonable price, a general "mark down" sale of both stocks might be made, when the building and lot could be easily disposed of or let. To carry out this idea, it would be necessary to have the active co-operation of Charley and for Elliott to go with them to Boston to secure what was required for an additional stock of clothing. Then it would be essential to cover the whole back country with posters and handbills of the sale, which he and Charley could do, and they would take charge of it, with Elliott's and what other assistance should be required. Accordingly the next day he called at the bank and informed Mr. Benton how he had found the situation of affairs at the store: Elliott's statements about the bankrupt stock of ready-made clothing and his plan for a mark down sale, and he added: "Of course, Mr. Benton, you may not like to have it go out that you are conducting such a scheme, but you can have it understood that you have turned the matter over to Charley and me, to see what we can do."

"That idea, my boy, strikes me quite favorably, and I will talk with Charley about it and decide upon what is best right away."

Mr. Benton did so at tea time. Charley was enthusiastic over the idea, and exclaimed: "Oh dad, that's great. I'd like nothing better than to see what Tom and I can do. I'm tired of being a mere clerk. There will be lots of excitement in it and a necessity for hustling."

"I'm glad to hear you say that," said his father. "Nothing would suit me better than to see you a hustling and successful business man. Tom says this thing can't be pulled off without your assistance. Glad you are so enthusiastic about it." (to his wife) "I think, Mary, I'll let the boys see what is in them for business."

"That's right, Jarvis. They will succeed. Two smarter young men can't be found in this town or anywhere else. I'm proud of them. All they need is an opportunity to show what they can do," his wife replied.

"Can't I do something to help father?" inquired Maude.

"And is my girl interested in this affair? Well! Well!"

"Of course, father, I'm interested. When the boys go to Boston to purchase goods, Betty and I, with Bob's help to make the deliveries, can manage the express business, and during the sale we will be needed in the store."

"Oh, isn't that great, sis, exclaimed Charley, "You and Betty, with Tom and I can turn the trick. We will show people that we can manage this affair in good shape and without slipping a cog."

So it was decided that Tom and Charley, with Elliott, should start early on the following morning for Boston in Charley's car, and it was urgently necessary that Tom and Elliott be immediately notified, and Charley getting out his racer, went to see Tom at his boarding place. He told him what had been decided upon, but Tom showed some hesitation about starting out so early with no one to look after the express business, but being told that Maude was to take charge of the express office while he was gone, he entered into the arrangement with great interest. They saw Betty and Bob, who were delighted to assist Maude.

Bob's teacher, Miss Emma Porter, was called on the phone, and she excused him from attending school the following day.

"Is Elliott there?" was the next inquiry on the phone at Woodman's hotel.

"No, he went out some time ago," was the reply. "Try Cook's barber shop. He may be there."

"Hello! Hello! Cook's barber shop?"

An emphatic voice: "You bet, who is it?"

"Tom Hadley."

"Oh, Tom is it? Well, what do you want?"

"Luther Elliott."

"He is being shaved. What shall I tell him?"

"Tell him to come to my boarding place as soon as you have removed his bristles. It's something important."

"He says he'll be down in ten minutes."

"All right, Shorty, thanks."

Elliott was greatly surprised when told that he was wanted to go in the early morning with Tom and Charley to Boston to buy a stock of ready made clothing to add to the one in the store for a big mark down sale, but he thought it would be a capital idea, and said he would put a notice on the store door that it would be closed till a new stock of clothing from Boston for the fall trade was procured and that he would be ready to start with them at 5 a. m. This was satisfactory, and Elliott went away for his customary call on his sweetheart, Miss Turner.

"This is a big thing for us, Charley, if we can pull it off," said Tom.

"Of course we can, Tom, when you and I take hold of a matter it goes. We have done the trick in everything so far that we have undertaken—haven't we?"

"Yes, Charley, but this is a different proposition from any thing we have been up against. Besides we have a set of Jews to deal with this time, who know the tricks of their trade, which we don't. We shall find them about as smart as we are, I guess."

"I'm going to let you handle them, Tom, and I'll be ready to make a display of a big check at the proper time, and put up any bluff that may be necessary. Cash or its equivalent has a mighty moving power with Jews."

"That's the stuff, old man. You have always played your part to perfection and kept your coat on. Elliott isn't worth a tow string at bluffing, and we mustn't let him know all our plans, but he will know the value of the goods we want to buy and this insures us against being cheated. There may be occasions when from my movements you will have to guess what the bluff it, and then you must act according to your best judgement," replied Tom.

"I catch on. At such a time, keep your weather eye on Tom, eh? But I must have a few words with Betty."

"You'll do, all right, Charley, beyond a doubt, but I—" Charley was out of hearing in his eagerness to see Betty ere Tom could complete what he had started to say.

When Charley reached home he found his father and sister anxious to learn what had been done. He told them that arrangements were all made for them to start for Boston very early the following morning. Mr. Benton handing Charley a blank check on the Exchange Bank of Boston, charged him on no account to exceed $3,500 in the purchase of the required stock of goods, which his son promised faithfully to observe. Mr. Benton judged that such a sum would be sufficient to purchase all the ready made clothing required.

"What did Tom say, Charley," inquired Maude, "about my taking charge of the express office while he was away?"

"When I told him that father had decided for us to go to Boston in the morning, he looked serious and said he didn't know who could be secured so soon to look after the office, but when I said you was willing to do it with Betty's help and Bob to attend to the deliveries, a look of satisfaction spread over his face and he said: "Then it will be all right and I shall go away feeling that the office could not be left in better hands" And to guy him a little, I replied: "Oh shucks, Tom, you think Maude could do anything, even in matters where she has had no experience. She is not so smart or accomplished as some others I know and"—Maude interrupting: "Oh Charley, how could you say that?"

"Oh just to tease Tom, and he snapped: "You know better, Charley. There is no one her equal I ever knew."

"That was well said, Charley," repied Mr. Benton with spirit. "There is no young lady quite equal to our Maude and I am glad Tom thinks so, too. But Charley you shouldn't start anything that might lead to unpleasant comparisons between Maude and Betty, especially. From present appearances it looks like Betty being a member of the family some day, which is very pleasing to us all. There is no rivalry between her and Maude and I trust there never will be. We all are very fond of Betty. We think she is just the one for you, Charley. The more you think of and tenderly care for her, the better it will suit us, but don't go to making any comparisons that might lead to unpleasant reflections and annoying results."

"I shall box Charley's ears if he makes any more such talk to Tom or any one else. I don't like it," pouted his sister.

"I didn't mean anything," retorted Charley, "I only wanted to guy Tom," and he went off to bed in a huff.

Putting her arms around her father's neck and caressing him, Maude whispered: "There is no one in the whole world so wise and good as my father." He gently stroked her hair as was his habit and her purturbed spirit was quieted and she soon slipped away to her own room.

KEZAR FALLS

Schools Opened—Guests Returned to Homes—Baseball Boys Given Suits.

All the schools in the village commenced their activities Monday morning, the 8th day of September. The Milliken School on the Parsonsfield side of the river, named after the one time governor of the State, and whose picture hangs on one of the walls to commemorate his merits, is presided over by Miss Irene Libby and Miss Cressey Pendexter. In Porter we have Porter High, with John Hylan, principal and the rest of the faculty as given: Miss Annette Callaghan, Miss Rosella Lovett; Junior High, Miss Davis; Grammar school, Mrs. Harold Day; Primary, Miss Virginia Atherton.

Alice Edgecomb and Geneva Merrifield have returned to Gorham Normal School, Cora West, Ruth Stacy, Dorothy Stacy and Dorothea Watson have entered on their first term.

Dr. and Mrs. F. G. Devereaux and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Garner have returned from an enjoyable auto trip through Vermont.

Mrs. Lilla Gentleman and daughter, Hazel, also a married daughter, Mrs. Sumner Tewksbury, with three children, who have been spending the summer months on the Davis farm, returned to their home in Watertown, Mass., last Sunday.

Mrs. Carl Stanley entertained the Ladies' Circle on the afternoon of Sept. 2. After business was concluded, games and readings were in order, followed by a collation of candy.

Miss Theda Fox has returned to Troy, N. Y., to resume her duties in training as a nurse.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoodlet, who have been recent guests of Dr. and Mrs. E. G. Caston, are home again after a very pleasurable visit, home in Woolwich, Me.

The Library Association held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Carl Stanley, Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 3rd. The members voted to purchase twenty dollars worth of books each month. They had a busy session as plans for the bazaar to be held in November were also discussed.

The Kezar Falls Baseball Boys have been the recipients of a beautiful present which they highly prize. Suits for the crowd, and of a becoming shade of gray, lettered in blue across the front with the name of their home town, which is Kezar Falls, and whose honor is theirs, to "have and to hold."

Press of business hindered Mr. Haradon from staying two weeks at his summer home here. He and Mrs. Haradon were obliged to return the last of the week to their home in New York City.

The big Kiwanis Inter Club Meet at Hotel Randall, North Conway, New Hampshire, September 3rd, held one hundred and eighty-two men in the ties of brotherhood, not of consanquinity, but of deliberate choice. All that was done was of their own free will and that scattered amongst them got the best of everything going, whether it were music, lecturing, or viands, for they did make out to eat, sing and be merry with all their senses alert, and when all was over, they hied them to their homes and elated the home people with the doings, sayings and general magic of the wonderful period of time they had enjoyed.

A GREAT DISCOVERY

MORE than half a century ago, the discovery was made that emulsification helped make cod-liver oil easy to take and digest. It is the adaptation of this principle in that has made possible the wide-spread use and realization of the health-giving benefits of cod-liver oil.

Where there is need for cod-liver oil—Scott's Emulsion will serve that need adequately and pleasantly.

FOR YOUR CHILD'S HEALTH READ WHAT THESE MOTHERS SAY

"My son suffered from nervousness, sleeplessness, twitching eyes, and threw up his food . . . giving him Dr. True's Elixir resulted in his improving so rapidly that I felt grateful to Dr. True's Elixir ever since."—Mrs. R. W. Winchester, 273 Essex St., E. Lynn, Mass.

Dr. True's Elixir is a pure Herb Laxative.

"Dr. True's Elixir has been a family remedy in my home for years . . . . . My youngest boy had symptoms of worms. I used your Elixir and in a week his crossness, fever and restlessness were a thing of the past."—Mrs. L. Racine, Malden, Mass.

Constipation often causes children to have worms or other disorders. Aid Nature by keeping the intestines clear by giving Dr. True's Elixir. "My little girl was quite ill . . I used Dr. True's Elixir with most beneficial results." —Mrs. J. H. Shea, Cambridge, Mass.

Dr. True's Elixir
LAXATIVE WORM EXPELLER FOR CHILDREN

Her Cross Little Boy Wouldn't Eat or Sleep

"My little son had poor appetite, couldn't sleep and was cross. I gave him Vinol and it ended these troubles like magic."—Mrs. L. DuCrest.

Vinol supplies the body important mineral elements of iron, calcium with cod liver peptone. This is just what thin, nervous children or adults need, and the Quick results are surprising. The very FIRST bottle brings sound sleep and a BIG apeptite. Vinol tastes delicious! L. V. Ashton, Druggist.

Ehibition Hall

Object Lessons and Practical Instruction

The Exhibition Hall carried out well the policy of the Oxford County Fair Exposition, in giving object lessons, practical instructions and educational values, through varied exhibits, displays and demonstrations. Every inch of space was utilized and the general opinion seemed to be that the hall was never prettier or more attractive.

In the Upper Hall the three large exhibits were by the Granges of South Paris, Hebron and Frederick Robie, each vieing with each other for the most attractive display. The Frederick Robie space was outlined with hemlock and mountain cranberries, and mammoth cranberries were used at the corners. Home grown hops and a stalk of home grown tobacco, were unusual. Grains and grasses were arranged at one end. Forty-four plates of apples and also pears and peaches proved the year to be have been a good one for fruit production.

Eight plates of as many varieties of potatoes; mammoth pumpkin and squash, as well as those of ordinary sizes, musk melon, citron, tomatoes, and the usual varieties of garden vegetables along with some unusual samples all made up an attractive display. Three large braided rugs, and a fancy rug; fancy work galore; spun wool, the yarn and a knitted pair of mittens, displayed the handiwork. A large collection of cut flowers and some plants brightened the exhibition.

The dairy display was attractive and there was a large collection of canned fruits and vegetables, and also a collection of home cooked foods and candy. M. A. Brett, Mrs. E. M. Martin, Mrs. D. B. Greenleaf, Mrs. M. I. Merrill, Mrs. Tena Wilkins and Mrs. Mary Linnell, comprised the committee.

Paris Grange

Sprigs of fir with the cones of the wild cinnamon formed the decorations and mammoth squash and corn stalks were used for the display. A collection of grains and grasses, bundlers of seeds, dried corn and the "fruit of the land". Flowers in beautiful variety, a case of home cooked foods including a roast chicken, cakes, baked beans, black and white pastries, etc.; a large collection of fancy work, rugs, sofa pillows; fifty varieties of jelly and as many jars of fruit and vegetables; wool in its natural state, then the yarn and then the knitted products; a large display of dairy products, milk, cream, butter, cream and dairy cheese, eggs from five different strains and goose and turkey eggs, honey, homemade lard, all showed what the women of the household can do.

The fruit display was very fine. Fifty plates of apples, pears and plums, and a large collection of vegetables were credited to the men. A vegetable man was a clever combination. The body was a long pie pumpkin, the head a strawberry apple, with cranberries for the eyes, carrots for the arms and legs, potatoes for the feet and tiny potatoes for the toes. The pipe was a toothpick and the bowl a tiny onion. There were two home cured fur skins and some odd pieces of china which attracted comment. Among the workers were Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Woodworth, Guy Knightly, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Cummings, Dora Tyler, Austin P. Stearns, Jr., and a corps of assistants.

Hebron Grange

This exhibit was set off with cedar and the cedar buds, and tall corn stalks at the corners. They had a fine display of garden seeds, grasses and grains, and quantities of fruit and vegetables, which includes about fifty plates of apples, with pears, plums, grapes, peaches.

The display of canned goods included fruit vegetables and meats. A case of dairy products, had besides the milk and cream, butter, eggs, etc., three whole cheeses, plain, sage and pimento. A case of food contained many varieties. Hand embroideries and article in crochet or in combination, intermingled with flowers was attractive.

There was an unusual display of potatoes, nine of the Green Mountain variety, grew in one hill. The seed was imported from Prince Edward Island. Another variety, the "Maules Thorobred" had nine mammoth spuds grown in one hill; and still another of six even larger, of the "Spaulding Rose" variety, grew all in one hill. These were also imported from Prince Edward Island. Several mammoth specimens of pumpkin and squash were shown, as well as extra large cucumbers. Among the workers at this display were Dwight Cushman, Elmer Hutchinson, Mrs. T. W. Hollis, Mrs. C. W. Cummings and Mrs. Blanche Merrill.

The Boys' and Girls' 4-H Clubs occupied a large space and showed the young people had been busy along with their elders. Much emphasis was given this work this year. It was in charge of the County Agent, the Home Demonstration Agent, and the local leaders, and received much favorable comment. There were articles from the Home Improvement clubs, both junior and senior; the Sewing Clubs; Cooking and Housekeeping; Girls' Canning Clubs, all in uniform jars. The Boys' Clubs showed garden products and special emphasis on the sweet corn and potato raising.

Next the 4-H display was a collection of some forty varieties of Gladiolus, shown by T. J. Mayberry of Naples, who was taking orders for bulbs.

E. W. Skillin, Norway, showed a rustic table and chair, as a sample of what he makes.

The Maine Mineral Store, Stanley I. Perham, West Paris, had a very attractive display of large and small minerals and gems, and in a case were some of the cut products.

Arthur Valley of Paris had a case of minerals and gems, many taken from Mt. Mica, Paris.

Miss Ruth Miller, South Paris, has a large collection of water colors, oils, still life, and hand painted glassware, and technical designing.

Mrs. C. G. Miller, South Paris had hand painted china, crayon work, water colors.

John Starbird, Norway, showed oil paintings, and Miss Dorothy Wiles, Norway, a collection of water color. Mrs. Winnie Ridlon, Paris, had a collection of passe-partout work. Miss Musa Taylor, South Paris had water colors and technical designs. Mrs. M. A. Bancroft, Norway, had an excellent painting.

In the children's work under 6 years, were some very good water colors, oils, charcoal and pencil drawings.

A show case filled with children's hand work contained miscellaneous articles in embroidery, bead work, hand painted china and glass, all creditable.

The Norway Nursing Service had an exhibition of School Luncheons, which showed five different "menus" all in substantial articles, that could be taken to school for the noon lunch. This space was decorated with placards of "Good Health". Recipe books were given away.

A show case of burnt work, cone work, an alligator skin, and various unusual articles captured the eye.

The fancy work department contained a large variety of embroideries, cut work, applique work, sofa pillows, etc. This occupied the whole side of the hall. At one end was the crocheted and knitted articles, also a large collection. One of the unusual articles was a rug made from pieces of silk underwear.

There was a large display of quilts and embroidered bed spreads. One silk quilt was made of 381 ribbons won by A. D. Cummings in Maine and New Hampshire

Paris Grange

Fruit with the red berries of bittersweet formed the border decoration and mammoth sunflowers and cornstalks were used for the corners. A display of grains and grasses, many varieties of seeds, dried apple, showed the "fruit of the land". Flowers in beautiful variety, a case of home cooked food, including roast chicken, salads, pies, baked beans, black and blue berries; a large collection of fancy work, rugs, sofa pillows; fifty tumblers of jelly and as many jars of fruit and vegetables; wool in its natural state, then carded and then the knitted products; a display of dairy products, milk, cream, butter, cream and dairy cheese, from five different strains and duck and turkey eggs, honey, homemade bread all showed what the woman of the home could can do.

The fruit display was very fine. Fifty varieties of apples, pears and plums, and a large collection of vegetables were exhibited to the men. A vegetable man and a clever combination. The body was a large pie pumpkin, the head a strawberry apple, with cranberries for the eyes, corn for the arms and legs, potatoes for the feet and tiny potatoes for the hands. The pipe was a toothpick and the hat a tiny onion. There were two home made fur skins and some odd pieces of work which attracted comment. Among the workers were Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Wentworth, Guy Knightly, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Cummings, Dora Tyler, Austin P. Morris, Jr., and a corps of assistants.

Another variety, the "Maules Thorobred" had nine mammoth spuds grown in one hill; and still another of six even larger, of the "Spaulding Rose" variety, grew all in one hill. These were also imported from Prince Edward Island. Several mammoth specimens of pumpkin and squash were shown, as well as extra large cucumbers. Among the workers at this display were Dwight Cushman, Elmer Hutchinson, Mrs. T. W. Hollis, Mrs. C. W. Cummings and Mrs. Blanche Merrill.

The Boys' and Girls' 4-H Clubs occupied a large space and showed the young people had been busy along with their elders. Much emphasis was given this work this year. It was in charge of the County Agent, the Home Demonstration Agent, and the local leaders, and received much favorable comment. There were articles from the Home Improvement clubs, both junior and senior; the Sewing Clubs; Cooking and Housekeeping; Girls' Canning Clubs, all in uniform jars. The Boys' Clubs showed garden products and special emphasis on the sweet corn and potato raising.

Next the 4-H display was a collection of some forty varieties of Gladiolus, shown by T. J. Mayberry of Naples, who was taking orders for bulbs.

L. W. Skillin, Norway, showed a rustic table and chair, as a sample of what he makes.

The Maine Mineral Store, Stanley I. Perham, West Paris, had a very attractive display of large and small minerals and gems, and in a case were some of the cut products.

Arthur Valley of Paris had a case of minerals and gems, many taken from Mt. Mica, Paris.

Miss Ruth Miller, South Paris, has a large collection of water colors, oils, still life, and hand painted glassware, and technical designing.

Mrs. C. G. Miller, South Paris had hand painted china, crayon work, water colors.

John Starbird, Norway, showed oil paintings, and Miss Dorothy Wiles, Norway, a collection of water color,. Mrs. Winnie Ridlon, Paris, had a collection of passe-partout work. Miss Musa Taylor, South Paris had water colors and technical designs. Mrs. M. A. Bancroft, Norway, had an excellent painting.

In the children's work under 6 years, were some very good water colors, oils, charcoal and pencil drawings.

A show case filled with children's hand work contained miscellaneous articles in embroidery, bead work, hand painted china and glass, all creditable.

The Norway Nursing Service had an exhibition of School Lunches, which showed five different "menus" all in substantial articles, that could be taken to school for the noon lunch. This space was decorated with placards of "Good Health". Recipe books were given away.

A show case of burnt work, cone work, an alligator skin, and various unusual articles captured the eye.

The fancy work department contained a large variety of embroideries, cut work, applique work, sofa pillows, etc. This occupied the whole side of the hall. At one end was the crocheted and knitted articles, also a large collection. One of the unusual articles was a rug made from pieces of silk underwear.

There was a large display of quilts and embroidered bed spreads. One silk quilt was made of 381 ribbons won by A. D. Cummings in Maine and New Hampshire fairs and these represented only a part of those won for Sunnymead farm.

The display of rugs were unusually small this year, and not a braided rug was shown except on the Grange displays. Three rugs made in button design were the work of Mrs. Nancy Jewett of Waterford, 80 years of age. There was one crocheted wool rug made by a blind lady; another in rope stitch done with an embroidery needle.

The middle space was occupied by the DeLaval Company demonstrating cream separators and milkers. Overhead was a large collection of draperies, rugs and wall paper from N. D. Bolster Co., South Paris.

The Paris Mfg. Co. occupied a double booth, for the display of their products which was very attractive and included desk sets for the child, breakfast sets, toboggans, chairs, etc., mostly for the small people.

The Montana Cut Stones occupied a small but attractive booth at the head of the stairs in charge of Samuel Farrar, who showed white stone gem rings effectively arranged against a background of black velvet.

The College of Agriculture, Orono, occupied a booth, showing practical houses and feeding devices for the poultry and bulletins were there for the asking, telling about how to do right things.

The Graysurf Gift Shopp of South Portland, in charge of Mrs. A. O. Slipp, showed many suggestions in novelties and small gifts.

Bradford Bros. of Norway demonstrated General Motors Radios.

George N. Emmons, West Paris, had a beautiful collection of garden flowers, including Phlox, Glads, Dahlies and Coleus plants.

In the adjoining booth, was the "Bead Hospital", where all kinds of repair work was done and D. F. Lynch, in charge, showed many bead articles and other jewelry.

Lower Hall

Cressey & Allen of Portland occupied their usual space opposite the main entrance. They showed everything in musical instruments and demonstrated when other booths were quiet, so there was music all the time, from one corner of the hall or the other.

R. P. Sketop occupied his usual place in the corner, where he has been for 27 years. His collection of sweet grass baskets, large and small, for service and for every occasion, was most attractive and he showed several new patterns and shapes.

In a small booth next Sketop, wire jewelry was made while you waited, and in the next, articles were engraved while you waited a little longer.

Aunt Evelyn's home made fudge and cocoanut cakes from Old Orchard, occupied two booths, one on each side of the hall. Those who sampled, said it was fine.

Japanese Fountain Pens were demonstated and sold, in a small space.

The Universalist ladies of Norway occupied their usual booth and served attractive lunches, sandwiches, doughnuts, pies, coffee, tea, etc.

The Maytag electric washing machine demonstrated the way they advised the Monday wash to be done.

M. Beane from Old Orchard had Japanese fountain pens and an engraving outfit.

I. F. Blaisdell of Auburn occupied the usual booth for the showing of Grandin Milling Company feed.

The Red Feather Farm, Norway, occupied a booth with Carroll Decoster in charge and he was showing a brood of day old S. C. R. I. chicks, for which the farm is famous. Names were laced in a box by those desiring the chicks and Theodore Daniels of Oxford won the day old chicks.

R. C. Dunham, South Paris, occupied a large space at the back of the hall, attractively decorated with crepe paper draperies. He with Wesley Tucker, were showing and demonstrating the Edison, Philco, Majestic, Apex, Spartan radios and one of the wonderful machines was the Spartan Radio and Victrola Ensemble, which plays automatically 18 records without any human help. He also demonstrates the Meadows washing machine, which has "solved the laundry question".

Alan Miller was in charge of the Ralph R. Butts booth, for the display of Frigidiares, all in white and very cool looking. Miss Ruth Miller was busy printing placards for the booth at which she is an adept.

The Fowler Oil Burner was demonstrated in a cooking range.

The Denison-Greenlaw Company of Norway occupied a small space to show proper hardware in building.

Swiss Ivory Novelties occupied a small space.

Mrs. Wiggin, with homemade apple pie and ice cream, homemade fudge, Mt. Zircon drinks, was at her usual stand.

Paul Emery showed the Rawleigh products.

The Dunbar line of Christmas cards was shown in the next space.

The Crowley Flower Farm of Lewiston occupied the corner space for the display of flowers, featuring the Gladiolus. Mr. Crowley himself, was showing the collection of some 200 varieties, and his display featured many of the unusual and new varieties. He was taking orders for bulbs.

The Fro-Joy Ice Cream Agency booth, all in white, with the attendants in white costumes, occupied a booth in the center hall.

L. M. Longley & Son occupied a double booth on the side, showing the Lynn oil burners for the cook stove or the parlor heater, over 80 of which are in actual use in Norway and Paris. On the other side were the Deming Piston Pump and the Burkes centrifugal pump.

Charles D. Moses of Portland occupied his usual space for his gift shop, and he carried a wide variety of large and small articles, suitable for every occasion.

Frank H. Beck, Norway, had a large display of Gladiolus showing 1,000 blooms in 100 varieties. He had sweet peas and dahlias, and also a fine collection of house plants.

Mrs. Shaw and Mrs. Bowker occupied their usual booth at the front corner and featured lobster sandwiches along with other delicacies.

Howard W. Shaw, South Paris, occupied the space next the side door, for the showing of the Majestic and Atwater Kent radio with the Golden Voice, screen grid. Also the R. C. A. Radiola, Super Heterodyne, and the new Majestic, screen grid, all 1931 models.

Highland Spring Beverages in the black and gold booth, carried all kinds of soft drinks, potato chips and ice cream sandwiches. Mrs. Sheffield and Mrs. Woodard were in charge.

A small Froy-joy booth carried soft drinks, orangeade and pop corn.

The case of dairy products showed domestic butter made by Mrs. A. D. Littlehale and Mrs. F. A. Littlehale, both of West Paris. The latter had a fine fancy display which captured a blue ribbon. Mrs. Herbert Scribner of West Paris had a display of fancy butter in attractive designs.

Mrs. Harold Shaw of South Paris, showed a collection of cooked food not less than ten varieties.

Little Miss Arline Swan, Norway, eight years of age, showed a loaf of white bread and one of brown bread. Mrs. Emma H. Swan, Norway, showed white bread. Mrs. Ethel Dunn, Norway, had a fine display of canned goods, also a collection of jelly and one of pickles and of maple syrup.

Miss Marjorie Anderson of Sabattus had a collection of canned fruits and vegetables. Mrs. Frank Dudley, South Paris, Miss Lila Emerson, West Paris, showed collections of jelly. H. E. Gurney, Hebron, showed maple syrup.

The exhibition of vegetables was fine and large, and occupied two sides of the lower hall. C. D. Morse was in charge. W. O. Perry had a collection all raised under mulch paper, some fifteen varieties. He was distributing circulars on mulch paper, which he advocates.

Other exhibitors were Hugh Tracy, South Paris, who showed a mammoth squash; M. A. Bancroft, Norway, a squash weighing 58 pounds with a 56 inch girth.

D. L. Pride, Norway, showed a large California Banana squash, and two mammoth pumpkins of the same name. W. C. Symonds, Norway, F. E. Richards, South Paris, had several varieties and W. F. Hall, Norway, showed an unusual pop corn display. Sanford Brown, South Paris, had large cabbage and melons; G. H. Newton, Norway, showed a fine collection of potatoes, cukes, an unusual Gourd, tomatos, and a large squash.

C. D. Morse, Waterford, had a display of peppers, one as they were growing on the vines and a basket filled of the three colors, green, yellow and red. He also had a collection of tomatoes and melons. W. L. Maxim of South Paris showed a collection of pumpkins. Willard Witham, Norway, had a tobacco plant in blossom, several feet tall, very unusual in Norway.

Sanford Brown and George N. Emmons both had fine displays of field crops and garden vegetables, the latter being the largest individual exhibit.

G. Norton Emmons, 15 years of age, and Willard Witham, Norway, had fine individual displays of a collection of vegetables. Miss Dorothy Emmons, West Paris had a fine display of canned goods. Mrs. Frank Dudley, South Paris, had a display of pickles. Mrs. Avis Huff, Norway, showed a beautiful collection of unusual dahlias, some mammoth blossoms.

The exhibition of fruit in the upper hall was large and of extra good quality, well colored and well matured. Charles George was in charge and seemingly had not had any birthdays for ten years, although he is 95 at this time. He knows a good apple when he sees it.

Among the largest exhibitors were E. G. Farnum, Norway; J. H. McKeen, J. W. Colby, I. H. Ellingwood, I. E. Andrews, C. P. King, South Paris; O. C. Buck, W. G. Conant, Guy Collins, A. A. Conant, E. O. French, Norway; George N. Emmons, West Paris; C. H. Anderson, Sabattus; O. N. Cox, Norway; C. A. Smith, Woodstock; Mrs. Frank Dudley and Mrs. Mary McKeen, South Paris.

I. E. Andrews, J. H. McKeen and W. G. Conant showed a display peck of Baldwins, each. G. N. Emmons had a display of fancy apples, all red in color, reflected in a looking glass. O. C. Buck and E. O. French, each showed a box of marketable apples; W. G. Conant showed eight varieties of fancy apples in boxes, also commercial apples in bushel lots. Pears, plums, grapes each occupied a good amount of pace. Pears and plums well colored and grapes giving promise of color later on.

The baby show was omitted this year, for many reasons and more and better premiums were offered to the 4-H Club work, which takes in both junior and senior boys and girls in worthwhile projects and this exhibition was much admired and commended.

Poultry Show

Down Under the Grand Stand With the Birds

Harry Lovejoy was in charge of the poultry exhibit under the large grand stand. The show was not large, but a considerable increase over last year as C. H. Anderson of Sabattus, a professional breeder and exhibitor, supplemented the stock on hand with about 100 ducks, geese and Plymouth Rocks.

Edward H. Brown, instructor of agriculture at Norway High School, was the judge and awarded premiums.

A new department was opened to the Boys and Girls of the 4-H Clubs and several birds were shown by Arthur C. Jackson, Leonas Holt of Norway; Dorothy Emmons of West Paris, and Howard Sturtevant of South Paris.

Reds and Rocks predominated with Wyandottes a close second. Rhode Island Reds were shown by Arthur L. Cummings, Norway; Una Jackson, Norway; Raymond Gammon, East Waterford; Wesley Brown, Norway; Aubrey Moore, Norway; C. H. Anderson, Sabattus; Stanley Sturtevant, South Paris, and James C. Cleveland, Norway.

Barred Plymouth Rocks, nicely marked and in good condition, were offered by Rev. W. L. Bradeen, South Paris; Mrs. Leslie Millett, Norway; C. H. Anderson, Sabattus. There were nice White Rocks exhibited by F. E. Witham, South Paris, and H. P. Brown & Son, Norway, who had 16 birds. C. H. Anderson offered several coops of Buff Plmouth Rocks.

White Wyandottes from the pens of M. B. Cummings, South Paris, and C. H. Anderson, Sabattus, were attractive. Both breeders offered a nice line of White Leghorns.

Geese and ducks in pens and singles filled twenty coops or more. The birds were from the farms of Philip French, Norway; Harry Jackson, Norway; James C. Cleveland, Norway, while Anderson's exhibit of rare and uncommon breeds closed this department.

Utility stock predominated in the display but twelve or more real show room birds not in for premiums, added considerable to the importance of the poultry department.

A feature was the red, white and blue booth of D. W. Goodwin & Son, Pike Hill, Norway, where quality Rhode Island Reds of their strain were used to show the Drew poultry equipment loaned by the Burbank Seed Co., of Portland. This demonstration attracted considerable attention and favorable comments.

Automobile Show

Next Year's Models on Display—Attracts Crowd—Everyone Interested——

The popular spot was the automobile show room where next year's creations were displayed and new features explained by the dealers.

Chevrolet Sixes were demonstrated by Ralph L. Sturgis, Norway, and his assistant, Clifford Scothorne. Five models were there from the light, two passenger roadster to the heavy truck chassis.

Buicks also attracted many prospects. Four styles of the Eights, from the Norway Buick Co.'s salesroom clearly demonstrated new features to be popular in 1931.

The Fords were there from the Ripley & Fletcher Co., South Paris. The town sedan, convertible, sport model, new DeLuxe phaeton, the coupe and a 1 1-2 ton truck made up this display. Howard McAlister was in charge.

Oaklands and Pontiacs in advanced models had a place and offered by Stone & McDaniels of Norway. Wm. McDaniels and his salesmen were on hand to explain the new points.

The Dodge Sixes and Eights in four models made an attractive display from O. K. Clifford & Co., Inc., South Paris. Mr. Clifford and his representatives were with the exhibit.

General Motors, so well represented in cars, was augmented by the General Motors radio receiving set from Bradford Bros., of Norway. Music was picked from the air as an entertainment for the patrons.

Quite pleasing were the asters, gladioli and dahlias arranged into bouquets at the exhibits.

Free Vaudeville

The Japs Held Crowd Spellbound—High Diver and Juggling Acts

As usual, Wirth & Hamid of New York and Boston, furnished five acts for the vaudeville stage in front of the grandstand. The program was given every afternoon and two evenings.

Conceded by all to be the feature, the Japs, known as the Dach Shing Troup, easily qualified. Five acrobats offered a peasing routine of contortion, head and hand balancing, tumbling, feats of strength and plate spinning.

A close second was the sensational Madeline Berlo, former star high diver at the New York Hippodrome. She used for a landing, a glass and steel tank, 8 feet long, 4 feet wide and 4 feet deep. Fancy diving was done from a spring board a few feet above the tank, but the spectacular finish was a forty-foot head foremost plunge from a ladder.

Lon Daily entertained with a head balancing, juggling and wire act. His impersonation of an intoxicated club man, walking the slack wire, under a heavy slug of the forbidden juice, was well received.

A man and woman, known as the Bellthazer Duo, performed with balancing ladders, perched on polished balls. Equilibrium de luxe was featured in this act.

The Daily Bros. offered a spring board novelty where head balancing following a snap from the teeter board was smoothly executed. The pair executed a number of common acrobatic stunts.

Fred Bates, the Cuban baritone, who was vocal soloist with the band, announced the vaudeville numbers. This was Mr. Bates' third season as singer at this fair. When the school children were guests of the fair management, on Tuesday, he had the young folks singing the Stein Song to band accompaniment.

Early Activities

At the County Fair

The 88th session of the Oxford County Agricultural Society opened early. Showmen, concessionaires and horsemen arrived Friday with the numbers increasing every day until Tuesday, when the fair was started officially.

"Pop" Foster, the oldest vendor on the midway pitched his tent early at the same location he has occupied for nearly fifty years. Bill Twitchell had his eating house under way before Sunday and the Westleigh Eating House under the pines was organized for regular boarders.

J. W. Boyington of Auburn commenced dolling up the grounds with colorful decorations early Saturday and before Monday night, the exhibition halls, auto building, the grand stands and other spaces were arrayed in holiday attire of red, white and blue. Considerable work was accomplished inside the exhibition building and the effect was pleasing.

Bare spaces around the large stand, vaudeville stage and judges stand were treated by a landscape gardener. Small fir trees and window boxes of bright colored flowers added considerable to the attractiveness of that locality, while viewing it from the grand stand.

Down around the stables everything moved under the direction of L. H. Cushmany, Stanley M. Wheeler and the able assistant, Tommy McIntire. Eighty or more horses for light harness racing were stabled before Sunday night and a survey of the line seemed to indicate real racing would be the order the coming week.

Frank E. Decoster, superintendent of the midway, had that territory surveyed, and space was sold in reference to the blue print. The California Shows, including four rides, a side show or two and numerous concessions arrived Saturday on a fleet of motor trucks. The machines were running before Monday night. Smaller shows along with a good size army of pitch men, storemen and caterers swarmed onto the great play ground early, and were placed by Supt. Decoster.

Business was brisk down in the cattle department with the flocks and herds driven in and assigned quarters for the best display. Monday really was the active time and the superintendents in that department, A. G. Hayes, A. W. Weston and W. E. Penley had a merry session, making the entries and placing the stock.

Chas. W. Bowker and Elmore Edmunds started early to organize the exhibition hall and had a busy Sunday preparing for the rush of exhibitors on Monday. There was little vacant space for the eleventh hour arrivals, Tuesday morning.

The gates were not opened to the public on Sunday, only persons having business around the grounds passed guardians at the main gate. Some may not understand that this exclusion is to allow the show people a chance to put up their stuff without spectators in the way. Accidents are avoided and the grounds are quiet and orderly.

Gifted In Writing

Don Seitz writes: "By the way Elizabeth Alden Holman, who lived in the Freeland Howe house for a time, is a resident of Cos Cob, Conn. See her occasionally and swap Norway talk. She is doing some writing I believe."

We have a fine article written by Chas. E. Waterman, which will soon appear in the Advertiser. The article is along the line, "Reminiscences" brought into flame by the recent article of Don Seitz, so says Mr. Waterman. Watch for it. You will be interested.

If you have a story you think would be interesting to our readers, send it in. Articles and stories relating to Oxford County and its people are especially acceptable. We want them, so do our readers. Now that the cooler days and longer evenings have come you will have more time to write—send them along.

Mrs. Arthur Morrill, who sells cottage cheese of her own manufacture, said, when in, Friday, that she lacked just 2 pounds of completing her total of 6,000 pounds, that she was to make again, Saturday, and then she would complete her third ton of cheese. The greater part of her cheese she has peddled about Norway and South Paris.

A belated item, yet it may be news to some local friends: Miss Margaret Barnes daughters of Justice and Mrs. Chas. P. Barnes of Houlton, was one of the three Sophomores at Wheaton College (three being chosen each for their beauty and outstanding characteristics of honor, simplicity, loyalty, kindness and wisdom) from whom the Queen of May is chosen.

The sports editor has received a bountiful supply of tourist literature, rotogravures and clippings from Roger Hutchins at Port Angeles, Wash. Especially attractive was a post card showing a morning catch of fourteen steelhead salmon and beardsley trout. This photo was turned over to Editor Fred Sanborn, who appreciates that kind of game and good luck.

Irving Ward of Middlebury, Vt., called on us Tuesday. He ordered some dodgers and posters, calling attention to the fair and the flying machines at the Cummings field on Fore street. While here he called up his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Ward, at Harrison and told them he flew over that day and would spend the night with them at Harrison. At that time he learned that his mother was ill, but improving.

Bradford, Vermont, United Opinion is responsible for this item: "Miss Jennie Barber, for a number of years a popular teacher in Laconia, N. H., is in town and informs us that she is to teach no more and will not tell the press the reason why for fear that it will come out in the paper. The press surmises that she is about to make some man happy or miserable and if we are patient we will see the cards later."

D. Crommett Clark writes from his home in Somerville, Mass.: "We had a companionable evening, recently, with your efficient Sumner correspondent, Emerson P. Bartlett and Mrs. Bartlett. They called to see us when here on account of the illness of her father, Mr. Macomber, and it was a sad occasion because of his serious condition, for he died a few days later. Mr. Bartlett made me a gift of some apples and other produce from his farm. He has a natural fruit apple much like the Astrachan, only not so tart, and about a fortnight later in ripening, and I can testify to its superb quality. They call it the Jelly apple on account of its superior quality for jelly, and he told us how Mrs. Bartlett puts up hundreds and hundreds of tumblers and jars of various jellies each year. I am offering you the suggestion that you get him to advertise scions from the Bartlett Jelly apple tree next spring when it is grafting time. Those apples that he gave me are surely something superior in both texture and flavor."

Nellie F. Stone of Malden, Mass., writes on an important matter regarding town lines. Her letter is as follows: Dear Advertiser: I have just returned from a two weeks tour through Maine. It is my native state and I love it. The people of Maine are doing wonderfully well on the matter of roads. I can well remember when the best roads were no better than the poorest roads of today.

"I wish, however, that all town lines could be marked. From Boston to Portland thence to Bridgton very few towns have attended to this matter. It may seem trivial to the residents, but it means much to the tourists to know just where they are.

"I intended to call at the office and pay for another year for the 'Darling Advertiser', as my brother used to call it, after he left the state and just looked forward to its arrival, I also intended to leave an item covering my two weeks trip, but either I am getting old and slow or too much was crowded into the two weeks to allow this. I just hope you will find space in your paper to suggest this matter to your many readers and thus add one more attraction to my home state."

A recent letter from Mrs. Herman W. Emmons of Yarmouth, says:

"I wish to take this opportunity to thank you for a visit recently made to Sanborn's Folly, a most beautiful spot. I had out of state guests with me and they were quite carried away with the beauty of the place and very much pleased at being so cordially received by the caretakers. This is not often the case. I had read previously of some visitors who deliberately destroyed some birch trees on this property and we could not help but feel sorry with you as we noted these trees directly along the drive, glaring proof of some one's unthoughtfulness of others. We beg to inform you we did not molest a thing and shall always remember the place with happy thoughts.

"A little further on by a lake, in Waterford, I believe, we had an entirely different reception. We had spread our luncheon up on a large rock and were enjoying our feast and the beauties of nature at the same time when a man, I'll not say gentleman, appeared and stood a long while staring at us. As we were very quiet and were not molesting anyone or anything, we wondered what ailed him. We soon found out. While we were packing our things together, preparing to leave, he called loudly from a good distance that the place was private and we had no business there, etc, etc. I was much surprised for I had been there numerous times and had no idea of it being private. Certainly if I had known it I never would have stopped at that particular spot. It was quite a come down from the reception we received at Sanborn's Folly and I truly hope the happy memory will in time erase the unhappy one. I don't believe he was a true Maine Stater.

May I have a copy of the paper for Aug. 29? I did not receive one and although the news may be "stale" in it by now, I would like to read it just the same.

Thank you again for the opportunity of visiting a delightful spot.

Screens and the House Fly

Freeland Howe says: "In relation to a letter from me published in your paper about 11 years ago (a copy of which follows) I beg to call your attention to a clipping from the editorial page of the New York Times of Aug. 27, 1930.

How far ahead have we gone in eleven years?

Dear Mr. Editor:—I feel that a few words in connection with the news item which you printed about my demonstration of the life history of the house fly will be of interest and benefit to this community so I am sending you this little communication.

Having been familiar for a long time with the life history of the common house fly and knowing what a great annoyance it is to every housewife and nearly every one else at certain periods of the year, I found an excellent opportunity to make a practical demonstration to a few of my neighbors who keep grocery, meat and fruit stores, hotels, boarding houses and restaurants.

I just happened out back of my store where I found a dump-cart load of manure just ready to be hauled away from the pig pen from which it had just been taken, and noticing that it was teeming with fly maggots, fly pupae and adult flies, I asked permission of the owner to take a little material into an old tin dish for the purpose of illustration. He giving consent, I so did and proceeded to show it as above. When visiting each place, I made an impromptu speech something as follows:

"Please lend me your ears, eyes and thinker for a minute. You see in this pan some material taken from a pig pen right in the center of your village. The common housefly which is so much of a nuisance to everybody flies to this place, deposits its fertile eggs. In a very short time these hatch into those squirming maggots which you see. After a short time these maggots get very fat and become transformed into those red things which you see, the pupa. Inside that red case the development of the fly goes on unseen and in a very short time the red shell is burst and the adult fly comes out and crawls about, and then flies into your beautiful home and crawls about wherever he finds food and warmth. If there were no such places for the fly to lay its eggs, there would be no need for a single window or door screen in Norway village or anywhere for that matter. I thank you. Much obliged for your attention. Good day."

Some of my experiences along the way are interesting. Dr. Bartlett said, "Well, that's all right, but what are you going to do about it?"

Dr. Easton said, "Oh yes, I have known about that for a long time, but what are you going to do when your next door neighbor has one of the worst breeding places in town under his barn cellar?"

Walter Luck said, "My, that is interesting. I am fighting flies all the time down to my house."

Will Rice said, "That is interesting. You ought to see the pigs when I go down to feed my hens. They are covered with flies."

And so on.

Now I say these things without the least judgement or condemnation. I do not believe that a single owner of a pig pen or manure pile about town realizes in the least what a breeding place for flies he is maintaining. That is why I wanted people to see with their own eyes for sometimes they will believe then when they never will otherwise. This fly hatching goes on every day in warm weather and every warm day they fly about attracted by warm air and smell of food. One small manure pile will breed millions of flies in a ver short time. The breeding is continuous and the consequent necessary killing is the same.

Those of very delicate temperament will screen so as not to have to kill. Of two evils, the housewife often considers killing the lesser, and so goes about saing in her mind "Suffer it to be so now" but courting the day when she will not have to do it. All the time she has in mind the injunction "Thou shalt not kill" but ma feel in her heart that instead of killng, she is simply destroying something conceived in sin and brought forth in iniquity and she prays for the day when there will be a better way.

With the annoyance which the fly gives, the dislike of everyone to taking life under any circumstances, the great expense for window and door screens and the absolute needlessness of it all, why should a community tolerate such a nuisance even for a day.

I suppose if any man wants filth about him and even to live in the midst of it, it is nobody's business as long as by so doing he does not disturb anybody else thereby, but why should any man be allowed to maintain any establishment which is a great annoyance to say the least to a large number of his neighbors.

I do not think anyone will do it if he comes to realize what he is doing. If he does realize and then does not do anything about it, the community ought to be able to enforce its wishes by law. There is where the whole matter lies. Does a community wish to live always in the midst of the needless annoyance by the common house fly?

Norway, Me., Freeland Howe.

The New York Times item referred to says under the head of "Topics of the Times":

"The swat-the-fly movement has long had as its goal a community in which flies would be unknown. But what enthusiast ever hoped to live to see such a flyless town? Dr. Soper has discovered one in Italy. Its name is Montecatini, and thanks to strict regulations about filth and garbage, it harbors not a fly within its borders.

"The regulations are national in scope and very strict. Only cans in good condition may be used, and they must be equipped with tight-fitting lids. No old-fashioned open wagons are allowed, and village dumps must be located in out-of-the way places.

"Dr. Soper reports that the law is strictly enforced through Italy. Cleanliness may not always be next to godliness, but common experience shows that it is generally to be found next to discipline. An arm camp is clean. Berlin inherits clean streets from the days of autocracy. Mussolini has polished up some Italian cities until they shine—at any rate, by comparison with conditions in days gone by.

"Cleanliness does not come so easily to a democratic and cosmopolitan community like New York, but it could be much cleaner than it is today without fear of losing any essential human liberties.

Monster Wooden Pipe

In Oregon lies probably the biggest wooden pipe in the world. It carries water to run an electric power plant. It is made of staves bound together by steel hoops and resting in structural steel cradles throughout the 1,318 feet of its length. The pipe is 16 feet in diameter.

Foolish Feat

An English pedestrian recently accomplished one of the most difficult walking feats on record. He undertook to walk thirty miles backward in nine hours. This he succeeded in doing with fourteen minutes to spare, on the road between Bagshot and Portsmouth.

Crystal from Albany Mine

J. P. Morgan Gives to American Museum 4-Ton Beryl Crystal, One of Largest Known

One of the largest crystals of beryl ever found in the United States has been presented by J. P. Morgan to the American Museum of Natural History, where the semi-precious stone, measureing 7x4 feet, and weighing four tons, is still in its crate. Aquamarine and emerald are varieties of beryl. The Morgan crystal was recovered from the Bumpus Quarry at Albany, Me. Neither that quarry nor the beryl deposits at Golden, Col., has produced any material of gem quality, according to Dr. George F. Kunz of Tiffany & Co., one of the world's foremost gem experts, who recently visited the quarry and examined the crystal.

A similar crystal, 4 feet 3 inches wide and 22 inches thick, from Grafton, N. H., is in the Alger Collection of the Boston Society of Natural History, according to Dr. Kunz, who called attention to the Museum of History's latest accession in an article on precious and semi-precious stones in The Mineral Industry, which will issue from the McGraw-Hill Publishing Company presses in the next two weeks. Dr. Kunz is one of a large company of scientists contributing to the voluminous work.

Beryl mining is carried on in Columbia, Russia and South Africa, as well as the United States, according to Dr. Kunz who said:

"Until within the past few years, beryl mining has been carried on solely for the sake of the recovery of the gem portion of the material—the emerald of commerce. Now, however, the metal beryllium is receiving a great deal of attention and it is quite possible that within a few years beryl will be merely a by-product in the recovery of beryllium ores.

"A dozen large crystals of beryl, 10 to 20 feet long and 1 to 4 feet in diameter, have been found at the Bumpus quarry at Albany, Me. Unfortunately nearly all of these crystals are interspersed every few inches with thin plates of mica, so that they are very easily broken.

"Beryl has also been discovered near the village of Steinkopf in Namaqualand, and a company, Beryllium, Ltd., has been formed to exploit the deposit. While this company was formed with the primary object of developing the deposit in anticipation of a commercial demand for the beryl as an ore of beryllium, it is possible that minerals of gem quality may also be found. Several tons of beryl have been recovered, including one crystal 5 by 5 by 8 feet, estimated to weigh sixteen tons."

CAMP BRUIN

The following lines were written by Hortense Gardner Gates of Norway and dedicated to Camp Bruin, on the shore of Lake Howard, in Hanover:

High up in her mountain cradle
Lake Howard dreamed unknown
By green shore-arms encircled
She slept in peace alone.
With mother-love above her
Bended the brooding Skies;
Wild Birds sang their sweetest
And Winds crooned lullabies.

Life-tides in the valley
Surged higher year by year,
Till into her woods one morning
Camp Bruin wandered near.
The witching Lake beguiled him
He could not go away;
Lake Howard and Camp Bruin
Were lovers from that day.

Old friends sought Camp Bruin,
Went, and came again,
Till the charms of fair Lake Howard
Were known to the world of men.
Now summer homes are many
And merry campers call.
But you, O dear Camp Bruin,
You're pioneer of all!

HORTENSE GARDNER GATES.

Obituary

Elba E. Edgecomb

Elba E. Edgecomb died Friday, Sept. 12, at his home at the Falls at the age of 56 years. He was born in Mechanic Falls, Jan. 5, 1874, the son of Charles R. and Martha Bray Edgecomb. He married Miss Agnes M. Hunt of that town. Mr. Edgecomb was a member of Oxford Lodge of Masons and Pennesseewassee Lodge, Knights of Pythias, and the Mechanic Falls Methodist Church.

For thirty years he had been in the employ of electric light companies as station manager, and came to Norway eight years ago as day operator in the Central Maine Power Co., at the Falls.

He is survived by his widow and one son, Donald, of Norway. He also leaves one brother, Harry Edgecomb, of Auburn.

The funeral was at Mechanic Falls on Sunday.

Edward S. Paret

Edward S. Paret of Langhorne, Pa., treasurer of the Poor Richard Club and for fifteen years a member of that organization, died shortly after 9 A. M., Sept. 16, while on a business visit in the offices of the Shackamaxon Mills. He was sixty-four years of age.

Mr. Paret, who was vice president of T. C. Davis & Sons, advertisers and printers, had gone to his office in the Drexel Building as usual, and then had started from there for the mills on Allegheny Ave. He was in conference with Allen R. Mitchell, Sr., president of the mill, when he was stricken with a heart attack.

Mr. Paret, who lived at Langhorne Manor, had been for many years prominent in Philadelphia rowing circles. He was an oarsman in his younger days, and had been president of the Pennsylvania Barge Club for about fifteen years. He was a member of the board of that organization at the time of his death. He was also active in Rotary Club affairs.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Violet Paret, a brother, Louis F., and a sister, Mrs. Bradley Moore Davis, of Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Mr. Paret had spent several weeks at different times this summer at his cottage at Lake Pennesseewassee. He has contributed many articles of interest to the Advertiser readers.

Miss Lola Bennett

Miss Lola Bennett, formerly a resident of Norway, died at the State Hospital in Augusta, Wednesday morning, Sept. 17. Funeral Friday at 1.30 p. m., from Spiller's Funeral Home.
